"The names of those who fled to New England in its primeval and savage state to found a land for freedom of thought and action, will occupy a proud place in the history which is yet to be written. And ungrateful must be that descendant who will not, in some way, aid to rescue these names from oblivion, that they may be engraven upon the tablets of enduring annals."

DRAKE.

The following sketch of the first Stukeley Westcote was written, not for public circulation, but to gratify a laudable desire in some of his posterity to know what might be ascertained of the life of their first American ancestor, and as an introduction to the "Line of his descendants," which now accompanies it.

When it was completed, the writer was requested by the R. I. Veteran Citizen Association to read it before them at one of their stated meetings. This request he complied with, first adding the two introductory paragraphs to adapt it to the occasion. This association also requested a copy for publication in their organ, the Narragansett Historical Register. It is here reprinted in the same form in which it appeared in that magazine.

The two earliest of the name Westcote in New England, were Stukeley, Salem, 1636, and Richard, of Wethersfield, Conn., 1639. The "visitations of Cornwall" show that in 1620, Richard was of Truro, when he and a number of others were "stricken from the list" and declared "ignobilis." This was in the reign of James I., when every "non-conformist" was ignoble. Richard remained at Wethersfield from 1639 to 1644, when he removed to Fairfield, Conn., where he died in 1651. His wife was Joana; his children, John, Daniel, Joana, and Abigail. After Richard's death his widow married, first, Nathaniel Baldwin, of Milford, Conn., second, Thomas Skidmore. His sons, John and Daniel, went from Fairfield to Stamford, and in 1680, John was one of the purchasers from the Indians of the adjoining town of Bedford, Westchester Co., N. Y. Richard, probably John's son, lived in Bedford in 1690. But I have been unable to trace any connexion between the first Richard and Stukeley. The records of "Great Torrington," Devon, show a Richard, who, 1611, November 11, married Mary Parsons, but whether the same or not, is not known.

The Westcotts of Gorham, Me., were from later arrivals in America.

A PAPER READ BEFORE R. I. VETERAN CITIZENS' HISTORICAL Association at Providence, April 5th, 1886.

BY HON. J. RUSSELL BULLOCK.

Y paper may be entitled, "SOME INCIDENTS IN THE LIFE AND TIMES OF STUKELEY WESTCOTE," the first named of the twelve grantees in the Initial Deed of 1638 of Roger Williams to his associates.

Less known, perhaps, than some of his cotemporaries, I know of no one of that goodly company, who, nearly two and a half centuries ago, under the leadership of Roger Williams, and sustained only by strong faith in a just and overruling Providence, reared on yonder hill-side their rude dwellings, and there laid the foundations of a free State, whose names are not worthy of honorable mention, and the record of whose lives should not be treasured as the most interesting chapter in Rhode Island's history.

What I have been able to gather, of one of these men, with some coincident events with which he was connected, I present.

The somewhat unusual name Stukeley is of Saxon derivation. In that tongue it was written Stycle, meaning stiff clay. It afterwards became Stucle, and finally as now, Stukeley.<sup>1</sup>

Stukeley Westcote, originally Stukeley of Westcote, the surname being derived from the locality of the field or enclosure where his early ancestors dwelt, and the first of the line I am now tracing, was born in England in the year 1592, probably in the County Devon. He was received as an inhabitant and freeman of Salem, Mass., as early as the year 1636. He died at Portsmouth, on the island of Rhode Island, on one of the early days of the month of January, in the year 1676–7, aged about eighty-five years.

At the time of Westcote's arrival at Salem, he was about forty-four years of age, and his family numbered eight persons, thus showing that most of his children had been born previous to his departure from England. On the 25th day of October, in the year 1637, he had a house lot of one acre in that town allotted to him, as one of its inhabitants and freemen. This lot had for one of its boundaries the salt water or harbor, for on the 8th day of October, 1643, the proprietors granted to other parties all of the "waste" (unoccupied) "lands lying between the lot of Hugh Laskin and Stukely Weskett down to the sea."

Westcote was a member of the church at Salem of which Roger Williams had recently been the pastor. Fully sympathizing with him in the opinions: first, that the members of the Salem church should make public confession of their wrong in having formerly communed with the church of England; second, that the civil magistrate had no lawful authority or right to take cognizance of or punish any person for his religious belief,—Westcote was, with Richard Waterman,<sup>2</sup> Thomas Olney and Francis Weston, on the 12th day of March, 1638, ordered by the "General Court" to remove out of the jurisdiction of "The Governor and Company of the Massachusetts Bay," and to remove his family therefrom before the sitting of the next "General Court." In the language of the tribunals of that day in that Province, the "great censure" was passed upon him for "heresy." At the same time notice was sent by Hugh Peter to the church at Dorchester of the excommunication of Westcote and of his wife, to prevent them from being received into membership there.

&lt;sup>2</sup> Both Waterman and Olney were of the "twelve associates" of Roger Williams in the settlement of Providence, and continued to reside there until their deaths, leaving numerous. descendants. Olney came from Hertford, Eng., in 1635; was the first town treasurer, and both Waterman and Olney were repeatedly chosen members of the Town Conneil, Commissioners to the Colonial Assembly, and Governor's "Assistants." Waterman died 1673, October; Olney died 1680.

Francis Weston was also one of the "twelve associates" of Roger Williams. He arrived in Massachusetts as early as 1633, having been admitted a freeman of that colony in November of that year. He was one of the Deputies from Salem to the General Court in 1684. He was one of those who was tried with Sam. Gorton in 1643, and imprisoned at Dorchester. From "cold and hardship in prison," he "fell into a consumption, and in a short time after" (1644) "died of it."

Following the example of his friend and former pastor, Roger Williams, who had two years earlier, accompanied by William Harris, John Smith, the miller, Thomas Angell and Francis Wickes, the two latter then being quite young men, and joined soon after by Joshua Verin, even before they had crossed over from the Seekonk side, Westcote at once left Salem and traversing the "wilderness," as Roger Williams had called it, then lying between Salem and Providence, arrived at the latter place early in the spring of 1638. Before Westcote's arrival, Williams had already by his kind treatment of the Narragansetts procured two deeds of gift, the one in 1636, the other in 1638, from their two chief Sachems, Canonicus and Miantinomi, of all of that territory extending northwardly, north-westwardly and westwardly, inland twenty miles, and lying between the rivers Pawtucket, now Blackstone, on the east, and the Pawtuxet on the south and south-west. This territory now forms the greater part of the County of Providence.

On the 8th day of the 8th month, 1638, which would be October, Roger Williams freely admitted "twelve loving friends and neighbors," viz., Stukeley Westcote, William Arnold, Thomas James, Robert Coles, John Greene, John Throckmorton, William Harris, William Carpenter, Thomas Olney, Francis Weston, Richard Waterman and Ezekiel Holliman, into equal ownership with himself of so much of the lands above named as he had first acquired in 1636, the same being the lands laying between the rivers Moshashuck and Wanasquatucket. Soon afterwards "others desired to take shelter here," and among the earliest of these were Chad. Brown, William Field, Thomas Harris, William Wickenden,

Benedict Arnold, Robert Williams, Richard Scott, William Reynolds, John Field, John Warner, Thomas Hopkins and Joshua Winsor. And it was agreed by Roger Williams and his original associates that the persons last named, with such others as they and the original associates might thereafter be willing to receive into their fellowship and society, and to a communion of interest in their lands should pay thirty shillings each, of which £30 should go to Roger Williams as a "loving consideration and gratuity" for his "great charge and travel" in procuring these lands as "a place of succor for the distressed."

In the grant by Roger Williams to his twelve original associates, Stukeley Westcote is the first one named.

When the whole number of settlers, including the original thirteen and four females, viz., the widows Sayer, Tiler and Reeve and Alice Daniels, had reached fifty-two, they made a first division between them of a portion of the lands upon which the city of Providence and its immediate suburbs are now located, mutually assigning to each to hold in severalty a "Home Lot," so called, and an outlying six acre lot. These "home lots" were intended to contain in quantity about five acres, and extended from North and South Main Streets eastward to a line now the line of Hope Street. The "home lot" allotted to Westcote lay between a home lot belonging to Richard Waterman on the north and one owned by Robert Williams on the south. A careful examination of the early records, and especially of the deeds of adjacent home lots from William Reynolds to Robert Williams, bearing date the 27th of the 11th mo., 1644, and from Hugh Buet<sup>3</sup> or Bewitt to Richard Waterman, and to the town, bearing the same date, leads to the belief that Stukeley Westcote's home lot was located upon the block bounded by Waterman &lt;sup>3</sup> At a Quarter Court holden at Boston, 1640, Dec. 1st, Hugh Buet is found guilty of heresy, and his person and errors dangerous for the infection of others. Therefore ordered he be gone out of our jurisdiction by 24th, present, upon pain of death, and not to return upon pain of being hanged. In 1650, he was Solicitor General of the Colony of Rhode Island, and in 1652 tried for treasou, but acquitted.

Street on the north and College Street on the south, and nearly in the center of that block, and extending from North Main Street eastwardly to Hope Street.

On the 10th day of the 12th mo., 1649, Westcote having the previous year removed to Warwick, sold his six acre lot to Thomas Olney. On the 12th day of the 3d mo., 1652, he also disposed of his "home lot" to Samuel Bennett.

As one of the original proprietors of Providence, Westcote was largely interested in the common and undivided lands acquired by Roger Williams from the Indians, and deeded by him to his associates. On the 8th day of the 8th month, 1638, Roger Williams agrees that his twelve original associates and grantees, of whom Westcote was one, might "impropriate" to themselves twelve thirteenth parts, he reserving one thirteenth part to himself, of all of the natural meadows on both sides of the fresh river called the Pawtuxet, upon the condition that they should by that day eight weeks pay in therefor  $\pounds 20$ ; and in case any of the number should fail to pay their proportion within the stipulated time, their share or shares should fall into and become the property of such of them as should pay. On the 3d day of the 10th month, 1638, or five days before the time expired, Roger Williams receipted to them for £18 11 shillings and 3 pence in full. Westcote's interest as the owner of one thirteenth part of these natural meadows he gave to his eldest son, Robert, by deed dated December 11th, 1656.

In the latter part of the 10th month, 1638, Westcote contributes  $\pounds 2$  10 shillings toward meeting the debt and expenses of the town, a sum as large as was contributed by any one of the proprietors. An ancient paper in the archives of the R. I. Historical Society gives the date of these first contributions or voluntary taxes as of the year 1635, but this is manifestly erroneous.

On the 27th day of the 5th mo., 1640, he is a party to the agreement for the division of the Pawtuxet from the Providence lands, and for the disposal of the town's lands, and for the better government of the town. On the 19th day of the 11th mo., 1645, the thirteen original settlers, of whom Stukeley Westcote was one, with fifty-five others whom they had afterwards received as inhabitants with themselves, agreed in writing by an instrument signed by all of them, to "yield active and passive obedience to the authority of the King and Parliament established in this Colony according to the charter, and to all such wholesome laws and orders as shall be made by the major consent" of the town. His autograph signature to this agreement has been traced and is here appended.

In the 12th month, 1648, the day not being named, certain lots of land of threescore acres each, lying against the Pawtucket Falls, are set off to him and Ezekiel Holliman together. On the 19th day of February, 1665, he is allotted seventy-six rights in the common lands east of the seven mile line, there being sixty acres to a right, together with twenty-five acres additional of the common lands. On the 12th day of April, 1675, he is assigned forty-nine rights in the common lands lying west of the seven mile line, there being one hundred and fifty acres to a right. On the 24th day of May, 1675, he is assigned seventy-three rights in the common lands lying between the seven mile and the four mile line.

The initial point from whence the twenty mile line before spoken of, and now forming the eastern boundary of the State of Connecticut, the seven mile line, now forming the western boundary of the towns of Cranston and Johnston and the original town of Smithfield, and the four mile line, was drawn, is what then was and now is "Fox Point," on the easterly side of Providence river and where that river empties into Narragansett Bay.

In the autumn of 1638, Roger Williams, with Stukeley Westcote and his other associates, founded the "First Baptist Church" of Providence, the first church of that denomination established in America. Westcote and his wife, whose christian name is not now known, the early records of that church having been long since lost, were both received into its membership at the time of its organization after baptism by Roger Williams. This venerable institution is said by Backus to have been the second Baptist church established in the British empire. Knight, however, in his "History of the Six Principle Baptists," shows that this sect had a much earlier origin, and that they founded a church at Chesterton as early as 1457. The Providence church was for the first century and a half of its existence of the Six Principle sect. As early as 1771 differences arose about the service of the "laying on of hands" as a prerequisite to the communion. A majority held that while this service was not a prerequisite to communing. it was to membership. The large minority of 87 then left and under the lead of E/der Samuel Winsor and Deacon John Dyer founded the first "Six Principle" church in Johnston. But it was not until 1792, under the pastorate of Rev. Stephen Gano, that the Providence church renounced the necessity of the imposition of hands, and became Calvinistic. The first church in Warwick, organized soon after 1648 by Stukeley Westcote and five others, was of the strict "Six Principle" order.

The distinguishing features of this sect, sometimes called "General Baptists" and "Free-will Baptists," a sect always numerous in Rhode Island, seem to have been the practice of the office of "the laying on of hands" as a condition of admission, the rejection of infant baptism, and of the doctrine of predestination and election, and a belief that by obedience man may attain here a measurable degree of perfection. Their creed is embodied in Heb. vi. 1–2.

On the 30th day of January, 1644, Westcote bears witness under oath to the depredations and outrages committed upon the property and the persons of the first settlers of Warwick by the authorities of Massachusetts Bay, because they had refused to subject themselves and their lands to the pretended jurisdiction of that Province, and how their provisions and arms were seized, how their cattle were killed and furniture destroyed, how their houses were fired and their women and children forced to flee in canoes to the neighboring islands. for safety. After surrendering to a superior armed force sent against them, eight men (the ninth, Shotten, having died about that time of the hardships he had suffered,) living quietly in their rude homes in the woods of the ancient Shawomet, upon lands they had purchased of the chief sachems and beyond the acknowledged jurisdiction of any patent, were taken under military guard prisoners to Boston. Arriving there, they were tried, not upon the charges for which they had been arrested, that of disloyalty, but for heterodoxy,---their religion was wrong. On the third day of the 9th mo., 1643, they were convicted and sentenced to hard labor in different towns, to wear iron balls upon their limbs, and if they escaped or "published their heresies," then they were to be punished with death. On the seventh day of the 1st mo., 1643-44, after suffering these indignities for four months, they were pardoned upon the conditions that they should neither return to Providence nor to their former homes at Shawomet. An impartial historian has declared that this proceeding forms one of the darkest pages in the early history of Massachusetts.

It was not until many years after the purchase of Shawomet from Myantonomy that Massachusetts relinquished all claim to jurisdiction over the settlers at Warwick, leaving them in the unmolested enjoyment of their property and religion.

In the spring of 1648, being then fifty-six years of age, Westcote removed from Providence with his family to the new settlement Shawomet, now known as "Old Warwick," about nine or ten miles south of Providence and on the westerly side of Narragansett Bay. He was not one of its earliest settlers, for Shawomet had been purchased of Miantonomy for one hundred and forty-four fathoms of wampum peagesix years before, viz., on the 12th day of January, 1642-3, by Randall Houlden, John Greene, John Wickes, Francis Weston, Samuel Gorton, Richard Waterman, John Warner, Richard Carder, Sampson Shotten, William Wuddall and Nicholas. Power, although the latter is not named in the deed. What induced Westcote to leave Roger Williams and his other friends at Providence, after remaining with them ten years, does not anywhere appear. It is known that grave disputes arose during the earlier years of its settlement in regard to the division of its lands, while the doctrine of perfect freedom, both in political and religious concerns, there for the first time promulgated, occasioned contentions alike of creeds and of the right of a people without the royal sanction to organize civil government.

Richard Scott+ and Richard Waterman soon became Quakers. Samuel Gorton, a bold and talented, but eccentric man, not only rejected all outward religious forms and ordinances, but denied the right of the settlers to enact any laws or regulations until authority for that purpose had been first procured from the King.

Warwick, settled in 1642, now in 1643 for the first time enjoyed the advantages of a charter<sup>5</sup> of civil government, granted through the friendship of Robert, Earl of Warwick. Whether some or all of these causes combined led Westcote to a change of residence, is matter of conjecture only. All we know is that on the 5th day of June, 1648, "Steuk West-

&lt;sup>4</sup> RICHARD SCOTT was born in the Parish Glennsford, Eng., in 1607. He came to America in the ship Griffin, in 1634. Mrs. Anne Hutchinson was a fellow passenger, as was also her sister Katherine Marbury, whom Scott subsequently, in 1637 or '38, married. He died at Providence in 1685/2. She died in 1687, aged 70 years.

Mr. Scott followed Roger Williams to Providence, arriving there soon after his marriage. He was one of the 54 proprietors in the purchase Roger Williams made of the Narragansetts. He was a man of abilities and substance, paying in 1650 the largest tax save one in the colony. He was a number of times chosen a Representative to the Colonial Assembly. The well-known "Scott's Pond" in Smithfield bears his name. He became the  $\hat{\mathit{girst}}$  convert to Quakerism in New England, and his conversion seriously interrupted the close and amicahle relations which up to that time had subsisted between him and Roger Williams.

No charter ever granted to colonists was more liberal than this. It conferred upon them "full power and authority to govern and rule themselves by such form of civil government as by the voluntary consent of all or the greatest part of them shall be found most serviceable; and to that end to make and ordain such civil and criminal laws as they, or the greatest part of them, shall by free consent agree unto." (Continued next page.)

cot," with two of his sons, "Robert Westcott" and "Amos Westcote," were received as inhabitants of that town.

In November, 1651, in February, 1652, and in December of the same year, he was chosen a "Deputy" to represent Warwick in the Colonial Assembly. In 1653 he was twice elected a "General Assistant." These officers, usually two from each of the four original settlements in the Colony, formed the Governor's Council, and also exercised judicial power. Later, they were clothed with legislative powers and finally formed what, under the charter of 1663, was the old Senate of ten. He was also one of a committee appointed to call, if necessary, a special meeting of the Assembly, as the Colony was then in "eminent danger." In 1656, and again in 1660, he was elected a "Deputy" to the Assembly; and in the former year was one of a committee to restrict the sale of liquor to the Indians, and to regulate the excise and sale of it in the Colony. In April, 1671, he was for the last time elected a Deputy to the Colonial Assembly. Beside these offices under the State government, his fellow townsmen committed to him important trusts of a more local character. Thus in 1649, he and Ezekiel Holliman were chosen to collect £13 of the settlers to pay Joseph Cook for watching their cattle against Indian intrusions. In 1653, he was a member of the Town Council. In the same year he was selected to agree with the Indians about Nawsaucet, and the fencing off of their lands. In 1655, he is chosen to take the number of young cattle, and divide the money the Indians are to have between them equally; and also to ascertain the damage done to the Indians, and collect the amount of the settlers. This presupposes that the cattle of the whites had trespassed upon the grounds of the Indians. In the same year he is chosen to bound the fence at Quonimicut (Canimicut). In 1656, he is appointed to make a rate or tax to pay for the fence erected between the Indians and the common lands of the settlers. In 1664, he is authorized to keep an ordinary, and to entertain when the King's Commissioners hold court at Warwick. This vocation of inn-keeper was in early times frequently assumed by such of the settlers as owned commodious houses at central points on the post-roads. The old Benedict Arnold house was for many years a noted hostelry in Warwick. After his last election in 1671 to the Colonial Assembly, being then seventy-nine years of age, Westcote's name does not appear upon the records as holding any public office.

In May, 1647, the sturdy colonists met en masse at Newport and organized civil government under this charter, electing John Coggeshall, of Newport, President or Governor, and William Coddington, of Newport, Roger Williams, of Providence, John Samford (Sandford), of Portsmouth, and Randall Holden, of Warwick, Assistants. In their "Bill of Rights," they declared that this government should be "Democratical" in its form, "that is to say, a government held by the free and voluntary consent of all, or the greater part of the free inhabitants." And as if to make it more sure that no man in this colony should beheld to answer before any civil tribunal for his religious belief, at the conclusion of their code of laws they declared that "all men may walk as their consciences perswade them, every one in the name of his God."

Thus early was the first Democratic government established on this continent. And the principles it embodies are identical with those upon which the different Commonwealthsnow forming the American Union are founded.

In addition to the interest which, as already appears, Westcote had in the Providence lands, after his removal to Warwick he became a large proprietor in the "Old Warwick" lands, and in the lands of the Wecochaconet purchase, lying in the forks of the Pawtuxet river and thence down the south bank of that river to a point as far east as Apponaug Cove, and westerly into what is now the town of Coventry, and also in the Coweset purchase, lying south and south-west of the Wecochaconet; and in his will he states that he, together with Samuel Gorton, Randall Holden, Thomas Collins and John Potter, were the sole proprietors of a tract of about 2100 acres, situated in the north-eastwardly part of the town, between the Pawtuxet lands on the north and the "Old Warwick" lands on the south.

But few incidents in the private or home life of Stukeley Westcote remain to us after the lapse of more than two centuries from his death. It is recorded that, on the 14th of August, 1649, James Greene, eldest son of Deputy Governor John, sued Westcote in an action of trespass, laying the damages at  $\pounds 6$ , alleging, not that he, but that a great company of his, Westcote's, friends broke into his brother John Greene's house in Providence and ate up and spoiled the Indian corn he, James, had stored there. After the suit had been brought, it appears Greene met Westcote at a town meeting and demanded  $\pounds 6$  or  $2\frac{1}{2}$  bushels of corn. Westcote replied that he would see Mr. Wickes<sup>6</sup> first and then he would "know what to doe." At the trial, Westcote's son Robert swore that his father had tendered Greene 10s, which Greene refused to accept, saying he would sue the bond. The court found a verdict for Westcote for "his costs and damages."

1 des

Another incident may be worthy of mention. On the 14th day of June, 1657, John Bennet, a neighbor of Westcote's at Old Warwick, probably aged and without a family, voluntarily conveys to the latter all of his property, consisting of "8 cattel, 19 lbs. of peage at 8 per penny," and his house and land, excepting £5, which Bennet retains "to dispose of as he may see fit," upon the condition that Westcote and his heirs shall furnish him during his life "meate drinke and aparall." And on the 10th day of October, 1670, Amos, the son of Westcote, then living with his father, is excused by the town from service at the three courts, by reason of the "weak condition" of John Bennet, and the necessity of Amos personally attending upon him in his illness. This shows that the obligation to take care of Bennet was then being faithfully observed.

It further appears that Westcote and his next neighbor, "Peter Burzecot," the smith," on the 27th of November, 1656, indulged in the luxury of a little litigation, each suing the other, but the contention was of short duration, for on the 2d day of February, 1657, they amicably adjusted all differences without the intervention of court or jury.

In November, 1659, he is a witness in the noted suit, tried at Portsmouth, brought by William Field, William Carpenter, Zachary Rhodes and William Harris against John Smith, Treasurer of Warwick, where the issue was whether the bounds of the Roger Williams purchase embraced the meadows on the southerly side of the Pawtuxet river, then claimed by Warwick. And he states in his testimony the interesting fact that Miantonomi, who had been sent for to meet the parties litigant upon the ground and explain the bounds of his grant to Roger Williams, was so displeased with the acrimonious deportment of the parties toward each other that he left the place without deigning to give them any information.

Stukeley Westcote and his two sons, Amos and Jeremiah, were among the earliest in 1672 to sign the compact binding themselves to resist the threatened encroachments of the Connecticut authorities upon Rhode Island territory.

The lives of the early settlers at Shawomet were full of eventful incident and hazard. No sooner had they completed the purchase of this territory of Myantonomy, the chief sachem, than their rights, alike of jurisdiction and of soil, were disputed by Massachusetts, by Plymouth Colony, and by the local under-sachem, Pomham, although this sachem was present and a witness to the deed of sale from Myantonomy. At the instigation of Massachusetts, Pomham, to overawe the settlers, built an earthen fort-work near the head of "Old Warwick Cove," the remains of which exist to this day. At the same time, as we have already seen, the authorities of that Colony sent there an armed force, who seized the cattle of the settlers, arrested and carried captive to Boston the principal men, tried, convicted and punished them, and upon their release forbade them to return to their home. Massachusetts went so far as to allot the lands of these settlers to others.

Upon their release they took refuge at the island of Aquidneck, and the settlement at Warwick was for a time suspended. It was not until 1646, when Samuel Gorton returned from his mission to England, that they felt safe in going back to their former homes. They found Pomham and his tribe, now more hostile than ever, in possession of their fields, and seeking every occasion to seize their cattle, steal their goods, and entering their houses, insult the occupants. During this and through many subsequent years, the records of Warwick are full of the precautionary measures adopted by the town to protect the property and lives of its inhabitants from the predatory Indians, who secretly haunted its shaded swamps and shores. But these determined men remained and suffered, for it was their only home. The year 1676, however, was the most eventful of all. After the great fight at the Great swamp in South Kingstown, on the 19th of December, 1675, the troops of the United Colonies returned to their homes, leaving the town of Warwick defenseless. The Indians, exasperated by defeat, again gathered in armed bands, and on the 16th day of March, 1676, swooped down upon this settlement, burning every house in it but one, and again scattering its inhabitants.

In this war, Stukeley Westcote's eldest son, Robert, was killed, and now houseless, his remaining sons, Amos and Jeremiah, fled to the island of Prudence, where in safety they could raise a crop for their support, and he, wifeless and at the age of eighty-four years, is driven for refuge to the island of Rhode Island.

At Portsmouth, on that island, on one of the early days of the month of January, 1677, at the home of his grandson, Caleb Arnold, the son of his daughter, Damaris, by her husband, Gov. Benedict Arnold, after a long life filled with many cares and trials, he sickened and died. His remains, borne by his sons across the Bay to its western shore, near to which the last thirty years of his life had been passed, were laid at rest beside those of his wife, in the first public burial ground of Warwick, adjoining his home lot and former residence.<sup>s</sup> This ancient burial ground was near to and west from the present White or old Baptist church, and Mr. Amos Lockwood, a descendant in the seventh generation, living near, and now (1886) seventy-eight years of age, well remembers when many tumuli, eroded by time and marked by rough and uninscribed headstones, told of the place where the ancient sleepers rest; but now the ploughshare has obliterated all.

During his life Westcote conveyed to his sons by deeds of gift a considerable part of his landed estates. During his last illness he prepared a will, of which the following is a copy :

I Stukely Westcott of Warwick in the Colony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations in New England, now residing in Portsmouth in Rhode Island aforesaid, being aged about eightyfive years, and in my right senses and perfect understanding and &lt;sup>8</sup> A careful examination, page by page, of the Town Council and Probate records, and of the Record of Deeds, from the earliest time, and also of the imperfect plats of the first surveys and grants in the office of the Town Clerk of Warwick, together with an examination of the ancient papers, field notes and surveys of John Warner, Surveyor, and Clerk of the First Proprietors, now in the possession of his venerable great-grandson, William Warner, and of the more recent plats made by the late Chief Justice George A. Brayton, and the Hon. W. D. Brayton, each of whom for a number of years filled the office of Town Clerk, and devoted much time to an examination of the records, with a view of locating the lands allotted to each other by the first purchasers and settlers of Warwick,—has enabled me to locate with reasonable certainty the home lot and residence of Stukeley Westcote at Warwick.

The home lot and residence of Stukeley Westcote was south-westerly of and near to the intersection of the road now known as "Sandy Laue," with the old post-road leading easterly from Apponaug, through "Old Warwick," where it is called Main Street, and from thence on in a general north-easterly direction towards "Conimicut Point." His lot fronted the post-road on the east. This location is about one and a half miles in a north-westerly direction from the well-known summer resort-Rocky Point. At or very near the intersection of these two roads, the town in 1663 laid out a "Town House" lot, 6 poles wide on the post-road, on which it fronted on the east; 19 poles deep on its southerly side; and 4% poles wide on the west, its northerly boundary being on or near "Sandy Laue." Adjoining the "Town House" lot on the south, the town had granted an acre of land to one Peter Burzecot, a blacksmith, to induce him to settle there and "uphold his trade of a smith"; and in the rear of and west of Burzecot's lot, the town at the same time laid out a burial lot 8 poles square. The Burzecot lot is described as "adjoininge to the northerern end of Stukeley Westcott's house lot"; and the burial lot is described as "joining to ye western end of Peter Burzecott's aker of land adjoininge to Stukeley Waskott's house lot which is ye southern bounds of ye buryinge place." Stukeley Westcote was one of the committee appointed in 1663 to lay out Burzecot's land, and the Town House and burial lots. This lay-out was confirmed by the town on the 21st day of December, 1714, as appears by au old plat then made by Malachi Rhodes, Surveyor.

memory, doe make this my last will and testament, to the disposing of my estate which is as follows, to wit:

In the first place, I bequeath my body to the dust to be buryed, and my soul unto God who gave it.

Item. I make ordaine and appoint my eldest son Amos Westcott my lawful and sole executor to see this my will performed, and also to pay and receive all debts as belonging to me.

Item. I give and bequeath to my said Executor all my movable estate as Cattell goods and chattels, and also my land lying in Potaomet neck, and my meadow lying at Toskownk in the township of Warwick aforesaid. Also two-fourths of my land at Cowesit; all which said lands together with all privileges thereunto belonging or appertaining I give to him his heirs and assighnees forever.

Item. I give and bequeath to my grandson Amos Westcott, my town lot in Warwick aforesaid which I formerly lived on, with orcharding fencing and all things thereunto belonging; and also my thirty acre lot lying in Shawomet neck, be it more or less. Also a six acre lot and a meadow lot lying in Shawomet aforesaid, and also my share of land lying on the south side of Patuxet river which I purchased together with Mr. Samuel Gorton, Mr. Holding, Mr. Collins and John Potter; all which aforesaid lands or parcels of lands with all and singular the privileges and appurtenances thereunto belonging or in any wayes appertaining I doe give grant and confirm to my aforesaid grandson his heirs and assighnees forever.

Item. I give and bequeath unto my grandson Amos Stafford a fourth part of my land lying in Cowesit, which is to say, the fourth of the eleventh part of that purchase, to him his heirs and assigns forever.

In confirmation of all of the above written presents, I set to my hand and seal this 12th day of January  $167\frac{6}{7}$ .

This will was never executed. His grandson, Caleb Arnold, son of his daughter Damaris, being present, dissuaded him from signing it until his sons, who were then upon the neighboring island of Prudence, could be sent for, but before they could reach him he was " not able to sign thereunto."

A short time after his death, his sons, Amos and Jeremiah, by petition desired the town "Counsel to setle the estate of their father, who died without his will Being sighned or sealled." Whereupon the Town Council, first stating that they are informed that "he spake somewhat as in Adition to his will which was not committed to writting, and for as much as by reason of the Late unhappy warres the counsel have been put by that they could no sooner afect the same," nevertheless deeming it their duty to "perfect the sayd will," they then proceed to make a will for him by which they give to his son Amos "all the goodes chattells moveables and lands" not otherwise therein disposed of, and make him the executor to receive and pay all debts; to Jeremiah they give all of the lands his father had deeded to him in his lifetime; also the estate John Bennett had deeded to Westcote; also the share of meadow bought of "Peeter Buzicot," on the south side of the brook that runs out of the "grate pond," and one share of "meddowes at Potowomut laying above the rocky nooke, only we apointe him to pay 3 pounds country pay to his brother Amos"; to Damaris Arnold, his daughter, 20 shillings in silver to be laid out in "a peice of plate"; to Mercy Stafford, his daughter, "the bed in her hands with the furniture and such other of the goods mentioned in the inventory to bee in her hands," provided the executor is to be "freede from any other payment concering his fathers keepinge or funerall to her husband or her"; to "Robert Westcotes eldest sonn Zerobabell, is given one fourth part of the farm at Weequichaconuke"; to Amos Stafford, "sonn" of his daughter Mercy, is given a "fowerth part" of his grandfather's share in the township of "Coweeset"; to "Amos Westcote sonne of Amos his grandfather Stukely Westcotes town lott and comanidg" "after his fathers discesse," and one fowerth part of his grandfathers farm at "Weequisaconet" when he comes to the age of "twenty one yeares." This will is dated 1677, January 11th, and is signed and sealed by John Green, Assistant, Samuel Gorton, Assistant, Randall Houldon, Thomas Green and Benjamin Barton, they then being the Town Council of Warwick.

It appears that after the death of Stukeley Westcote's wife, his son Amos went with his family to live at the homestead of his father, and took care of him until the latter was driven away by the Indians to Portsmouth, where he died. This was probably the reason why Westcote, by his unexecuted will, gave this homestead estate to his grandson, Amos, junior, the eldest son of his son Amos, and why the Town Council in the will they made gave the same estate to Amos, senior, for life, and upon his death to Amos, junior, in fee. Amos, the son, died prior to 1688, having on the 23d day of January, 1685-6, deeded all of his estate to his wife, Deborah; and on the 18th day of May, 1688, his son, Amos, junior, who seems not to have been a very thrifty young man, borrows of his step-mother, Deborah,  $\pounds 3$ , for a term of three years, giving her for the use of it a life estate in the homestead farm, and agrees further that if he did not pay his step-mother this loan when due, she should have the estate in fee forever. Amos, junior, died in 1692 without paying the  $\pounds 3$ , and Deborah remained in possession and claimed the estate.

In the meantime, Zorobabel Westcote, who resided in "Kingstowne," and who was the eldest son of the deceased Robert, who was the eldest son of Stukeley, becomes of age, and taking legal advice is informed of the English law of primogeniture, as well as of the invalidity of the unsigned will of his grandfather, and also of the invalidity of the will made by the Town Council. Whereupon Zorobabel, in November, 1697, brings an action of "detainure," as it is called, against Deborah to recover possession of the homestead estate of his grandfather, Stukeley, and after two trials at law, recovers judgment for possession. The situation of Deborah, the widow of Amos, now becoming precarious, she summons to her aid her father, Samuel Stafford, and her step-son, Abraham Lockwood. Stafford and Lockwood petition the Town Council in Deborah's behalf to establish the unexecuted will of Stukeley Westcote, for if this can be established, it was thought the title to the estate in question would be vested in Amos, junior, through whom she claimed her title.

Stukeley Westcole.

The action of the Town Council upon this petition is best stated in the words of the decree itself. It reads as follows:

"Wee the towne Counsell of Warwick being assembled the 15thof ffebruary  $169\frac{a}{7}$  at the house of Capt Peter Greene, upon the application by petition presented unto us by Samuel Stafford and Abraham Lockwood, in behalf of the widow Deborah Westcot, concerning a controversie raised concerning the estate of Mr. Stukely Westcot late of Warwick deceased, which estate the abovesaid widow hath been peaceably possessed on several years past, and to make the mather more plainly apeare before the Counsell have produced the last will and testament of the said Stukely Westcott deceased as being proved by three positive testimonies taken before Major John Greene Deputy Governor the first of Novemb<sup>r</sup> 1695.

"Whereupon the present Town Counsell saw cause to peruse what hath bin done by the former Counsell in the year 1677, January the eleventh, and upon examination of the mather do find that the Counsell then through a misunderstanding being ignorant of the law of England that aproves of a will so made and witnesses thereto, although a person be disabled to sign and seal thereunto shall be effectual, and also wee being better informed, that the Town Counsell have not power to dispose of lands in case a person had died intestate. But the Counsell taking the matter into their serious consideration concerning the written will bearing date January 12,  $167\frac{6}{7}$  and atested before the Deputy Governor John Greene the first of Novemb<sup>r</sup> 1695, by three witnesses, we cannot but declare our opinions that it is a sufficient probation thereof."

The tenor of this decree, in language not only quaint, but somewhat involved and ambiguous, recites: that more than a year before its date oral testimony had been taken before Deputy Gov. John Greene to prove this unsigned will, and then proceeds to overrule the action of the Town Council of January, 1677, in language anything but complimentary to the legal knowledge of this latter body, and in effect establishes the unexecuted will as a valid will, and this, too, after more than twenty years had passed since it was first prepared for signature. This last decree, however, does not seem to have stayed the hand of the Sheriff, armed as he was with a writ from a higher court ordering him to put Deborah out of possession and Zorobabel into possession of the disputed estate. Deborah therefore next applies to the General Assembly for relief, styling it a "Court of Chancery or Conscience." In her petition for relief from this judgment of court, which is addressed "To the Honoured Governo* Deputie Governo* Asistants and Deputies of His Majesties Collony of Rhode Island and Providence Plantations sitting in a generall Asembly at Warwick October 27th 1697," and which she terms "The Humble Petition and complaint of Deborah Westcote of Warwick widow," she represents :

"That whereas my father in law Stukely Westcote toward the latter end of his life by reason of age and weaknesse of body atending, was very much disabled to take care of himselfe or the affaires of his house, and therefore was willing his son Amos (my late husband) should continue with him in his old age which accordingly was done for many yeares; many expressions at sundry times spoken which divers Neighbours are not ignorant of, that his son Amos should enjoy after him the greatest part of what himself was possest of, which did also appear that he so determined by his written will though it wanted sighning and seale thereunto. And we peacably were possest of what the antient gentleman bestowed on us and enjoyed the same without molestation, we also were ingadged in payment of debts, which we were diligent to performe as we had ability, yet not notwithstanding of late Zorobabell Westcote hath fomented an action of detainure which hath bin brought to a triall at the comon law once and againe, which hath carried against yo<sup>r</sup> petitioner, which brings a saying to mind that extream right may be extreame wrong, for if your petitioner should be disposest of that meanes of livlyhood which she at present enjoyed it must be of necessity her utter ruination, yor poore petitioner not being able otherwise to raise meanes to provide for herselfe and especially such a one<sup>9</sup> as of necessity must depend upon her, which hath caused this apeale to this honoured Assembly Court of Chancery or Conscience for releife in the case.

Yo<sup>r</sup> petitioner doth most humbly pray, earnestly request and suplicate this hono<sup>bi</sup> assembly that you will please to take the matter into yo<sup>r</sup> serious consideration, that your poore petitioner may be the object of your compassion so farre that the extremity of law may be abated execution stopped and yo<sup>r</sup> petitioner continued in her possession being her proven right, and yo<sup>r</sup> petitioner shall ever pray, &c."

What action, if any, was taken by the General Assembly upon this petition, doth not appear, as no records of that session are to be found, either in the town of Warwick or in the office of the Secretary of State. The fact, however, that Zorobabel subsequently conveyed the Stukeley Westcote homestead place to his brother Robert, who on the 14th day of June, 1708, sold it to Moses Lippit?, the ancestor of all of that name in Rhode Island, in whose possession and in the possession of whose descendants it remained until a comparatively recent period, shows that what Deborah in her petition calls "extream right," meaning thereby probably the strict rules of the law, prevailed in the end over all of the equities so forcibly presented in her petition to the General Assembly.

The case of Westcote was not the only case in which the Town Council of Warwick assumed to make wills for persons dying intestate. At a very early day in the history of the town, John Greene and Randall Holden, both men of influence, placed upon record their opinions that the Town Council possessed this power. This was followed in 1666 by an official declaration by the Council that if any person "shall die intestate, the Counsell" shall dispose, bequeath and distribute the whole estate, and draw up "a writing thereof" for record, "which writing shall stand and bee authentick for the will of the dead." As early as 1648, they proceeded to make a will for Rufus Barton, renewing and confirming it in 1666. Before June, 1656, they made one for Robert Cole. Then they made one for Robert Potter. In 1663, they made one for John Smith, senior. In 1659, they not only made a will for Ezekiel Holliman, who baptized Roger Williams, but appointed a committee of two of their number to wait upon Mary, his widow, and demand her formal acceptance of it, and of the office of executrix under it.

These proceedings of the Town Council of Warwick, and also like proceedings in some of the other towns, furnish an interesting commentary upon the manner in which judicial power was exercised by the inferior and local tribunals in those early days. By the law of England, as well as by a statute of the Colony, no unsigned will was of any effect, and no signed will was effectual to pass property unless attested in the presence of the testator by the signature of three or more witnesses. By the statute of 1647, Town Councils were empowered to take possession of the estates of persons dying intestate, and distribute it among his heirs But this law conferred no power to make a will for the intestate, nor was it intended to confer any such authority, thus substituting themselves, not only in the place of the intestate, but also in the place of the "Statutes of Descent" to determine who should inherit his estate. Both the law of primogeniture and the statutes of 22d and 23d of Charles II. (1682-83) were then in force in the Colony; the latter regulating the mode of distributing the personal estate of intestates, and the former, passing the real estate to his eldest son, and if he was dead, then to his eldest son.<sup>10</sup>

But we would not forget that these sturdy and self-reliant "non conformists" cherished no deep regard for the laws of England, whose rigorous enactments had driven them from the homes of their fathers, through many trials, here. At the advent of "The Commonwealth," believing it to be the harbinger of a larger freedom, they hastened to yield to it their allegiance, and reluctantly tore from their records and concealed the evidence of their loyalty when the monarchy was restored. They ignored, so far as they could, such laws of the mother country as seemed to them unequal or unjust, and appealed to its authority only when their jurisdiction or rights were menaced by the stronger Colonies surrounding them on either side. A century later, James Arnold, the assistant, and William and Jacob Greene, Charles Holden, Jun., and John Waterman, the Deputies from this ancient town, descendants from its early settlers, truly voiced the sentiments of the men of Warwick when, two full months before the great "Declaration of Independence," they heartily joined in the passage by the Colonial Assembly of an act abjuring all allegiance to the British crown, and striking forever from the arms of the Colony, and from all of its Executive, Legislative and Judicial Acts and Precepts, every existing symbol and insignia of royalty.

Investigations are in progress to learn the parish in which Westcote was born, and of his parentage, the maiden name of his wife, and the pursuits he followed anterior to his departure from the mother country. His name would imply and he doubtless was a descendant of the "St. Ledger Westcot," who about the year 1300 intermarried with a daughter of the line of the Stukeleys of Affeton. Inquiries now in-

Both the Colonial statute of 1663 and the statute of 16th, Charles II. (1676), declared all last wills and testaments not signed by the testator, and attested by the signatures of three or four witnesses, void.

Under the statute of 1647, the probate of wills was devolved upon the "head officer" of the town. But in 1677, the Assembly finding there was no such officer, "and as the making of a will for the dead, dying, is a waity matter," and as there would be no one to make a will for the head officer, the power was devolved upon the Town Councils.

That the law of primogeniture, giving the real estate to the eldest son, was in force, is evident from the act of the Assembly, 1718, repealing it, the repealing act giving the eldest son a double portion. In 1728, the repealing act was itself repealed as being "prejudicial and destroying inheritances." In 1749, the "Superior Court of Judicature," its members being laymen, held that no English statutes were in force in the Colony. This decision was so contrary to the general understanding and opinions of the leading lawyers of that day that the Assembly at once passed an act declaring all of the statutes of England which were declaratory of the common law in force here, and among them the statutes of 22d and 23d of Charles IL., which distributed the personal estates of intestates, one-third to the widow, nd two-thirds to the children equally.

complete may upon future investigation confirm a belief which already exists, that his ancestors are to be found of that old nobility who ruled England prior to the "Conquest," but whose rank and whose political importance were measurably lessened by the coming of those titled Normans into the land, coincident with the advent of William the Conqueror. Thrust down though these Saxon nobles were, as Freeman says, yet they lost nothing of their ancient pride and independence, but became in time the stout gentry and the sturdy and prosperous freeholders, who were and who yet remain the strength of the realm.

What manner of man Stukeley Westcote was can be gathered only from the known incidents of his life. From his known religious views in America, Stukelev Westcote must in England have been a "Separatist." To entertain such views during the reign either of the first James or the first Charles, was to close to him every avenue of social or political preferment. Arriving at Salem, his zeal gathered new strength, for he declared that he wished the churches of Massachusetts to be true churches, and to hold no communion with the church of England. He agreed with Roger Williams that it was needful to confess to the wrong done in communing with that church while there. In crossing the ocean at this early day, bringing with him his wife and his children; in leaving Salem after a residence of two years, and traversing with them on foot the uninhabited forests and swamps that then stretched from the bay of Massachusetts to the Narragansett,-shows that he was no dissembler, no man who to gain his peace would affect opinions he did not entertain; that he had deep convictions of duty, and a determined will to go where and do what duty demanded, at any sacrifice. His following of Roger Williams to Providence, and with him laboring to organize there a form of government whose earliest legislation declared that no man should be holden to answer before the civil law for his religious opinions, shows that the same freedom of conscience he claimed for himself he was willing to allow to others.

Stukeley Westcote.

That Stukeley Westcote was a man of good character and of upright life, is apparent from what has already been written. He was a freeman of the Colony of "Massachusetts Bay" at a time when none were received as such but members of the church. He was an intimate friend of Roger Williams, and as such was first named by him in his deed of gift of the lands at Providence to his associates. He was one of the founders of the First Baptist church there. On settling at "Old Warwick," he with five others at once united in forming a church there, whose simple yet comprehensive creed was, to "support in faith and practice the principles of Christ's doctrine."

That he was esteemed a man of sound judgment, and worthy of the confidence of his fellow-men, is evinced by his having been eight times chosen a member of the Colonial Assembly, and twice selected as one of the General Assistants to the Governor, retiring from public duties only when he had nearly attained the allotted years of man.

Stukeley Westcote had five children, three sons and two daughters. Robert, the eldest, one of the original purchasers of Quidnesset (Wickford), and who was killed by the Indians in the war of 1675. Amos, born 1631, and who died prior to 1688. Jeremiah, who died in 1686. Damaris, who married Benedict Arnold (son of the first William), and who was Governor of the Colony from November, 1663, to May, 1666, and from May, 1669, to 1672, and again from May, 1677, until the time of his death in office on the 20th day of June, 1678. And Mercy, who died March 25th, 1700, and who married Samuel Stafford, the son of Thomas, well known in the early history of the Colony.

Religious, and not worldly considerations, undoubtedly led Westcote to leave England and come to America. But like William Blackstone, the first white man whose feet first trod the banks of that river which for more than two centuries has borne his name, Stukeley Westcote soon found that he had fled from the "lord bishops" only to fall into the hands of the "lords brethren." It was not enough that he had left the home of his youth and the graves of his ancestors, and had crossed an ocean and reached a distant and almost unknown continent. It only remained to him to suffer the degradation of imprisonment or to pass beyond the remotest limits of both the Massachusetts and Plymouth patents. And it was not until, weary with long and pathless journeying, he had crossed the "Seaconk" and reached the "Whatcheare,"" "Welcome," shore, already consecrated through all coming time to the cause of religious freedom, that he was permitted in peace and safety to worship God according to the convictions of a matured, and it would seem, also, of a thoughtful and earnest life.

And now, in looking back over that life in the light of the few fragmentary records which remain, may not his posterity, scattered in many States, cherish a just pride in that they have descended from one who was willing, first, to incur the manifold discomforts and sacrifices of self-exile from the land of his nativity, and then to bear the stigma of excommunication from the church of which he was a member, and of expulsion from the settlement where he had just before established his home, and of which he was a peaceable citizen, rather than to abandon, or feign to abandon, a principle then abjured, but now acknowledged by the entire Protestant world as resting upon that immutable foundation—TRUTH.

STUKELEY WESTCOTE, born about 1592; at Salem, Mass., 1636; at Providence, 1638; at Warwick, R. I., 1648; died at Portsmouth, on the island of Rhode Island, early in January, 1676-7, aged eighty-five years.

His children were:

- I. Robert.
- II. Damaris.
- III. Amos.
- IV. Mercy.
  - V. Jeremiah.

I HAVE not sought to trace all of the descendants of Stukeley Westcote, now numbering thousands, and dwelling in more than half of the States of the American Union. My purpose only has been to ascertain and collocate, so far as I was able, his posterity of the first four or five generations, bringing a few of the lines down to a later period.

The absence until a recent date of any law requiring the public registration of vital statistics; the general neglect, in early times, of heads of families to voluntarily record, or have recorded in the books of the town in which they lived, their marriages and the births of their children; the almost inexplicable absence of any public records of Coventry for the first twenty years of its existence as a town, where many of the earlier generations resided; the fact that many of the earlier marriages in Rhode Island were performed by "Assistants," Justices of the Peace, and Elders of the Baptist Church, whose records were not passed over to their successors in office, and not preserved by their families after their death; and the want in this line especially, of private or family records of an ancient date, has rendered it difficult to accomplish this limited purpose with such fullness of detail as I desired.

My hope is, that some descendant may resume this work where I leave it, and make it more complete.

I am under no especial obligation to such of the kindred as neglected to respond to my inquiries, although accompanied in every instance with the return postage; but my warmest acknowledgements are due to the Hon. ### I. ROBERT<sup>2</sup> WESTCOTE, SON OF STUKELEY, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

OBERT WESTCOTE<sup>2</sup>, eldest son of Stukeley, was born in England, and accompanied his father first to Salem, then to Providence, and afterwards to Warwick. During King Philip's War of 1675-76, he was a Lieutenant in the service, and was killed by the Indians in that war, in 1676. His wife was Katherine ——. After his death she married, 1678, April 10, John Hazleton of Warwick, the elder brother of her daughter Katherine's husband. The record is: "In Warwick, by Mr. Sam<sup>1</sup> Gorton, 10th Apl. 1678, John Hazelton m. Kathene, widdow to Robert Westkote, soger, who was killed by the Indians in the late war's." The day before her marriage to Hazleton, she conveys to her first husband's brother, Amos, all of her estate of "housing and lands and household goods," etc., and ten days after, Amos conveys the same to Hazleton, upon the condition, that he "doth maintain according to his best ability as the Lord shall enable him for the breeding and bringing up" of Katherine's children as long as she shall keep them with her. By her second husband, John, Katherine had a daughter, Margaret, born 1679, March 11. In 1651, Robert is chosen a Deputy to the Colonial Assembly. In 1652, is chosen Surveyor for the bridges; also elected by the Assembly "General Sarjeant" (High Sheriff) to attend upon the sessions of the Court. In the same year he is bound over in the sum of £10 for committing a breach of the peace upon Randall Houlden. In 1655, is "on the Roule of ye Freemen of the Colonie," also a witness to the Indian deed from "Cheeseahamut" of "Warwick Neck." In 1656, is named as a witness in a controversy as to whether the Indians had observed certain treaty stipulations, and whether certain Indians had not been killed in violation thereof; also a committee to notify the Indians, and especially Pomham, to mark no swine after May 1. In 1657, appointed a committee to see if the Indians observed the treaty and remained peaceful, if not, to report to the Colony. In 1659, is chosen Commissioner to the "General Court," and appointed one of "fower" (four) to mark out the westward "bownds" (bounds) of the Colony. In the same year, is charged by the "Generall Aturney" "that he hath indeavored to submit parte of the jurisdiction," (Hog Island in Bristol harbor), "to another Collowny, namely, Plymouth," and suspended from office. In 1661-62, he and Zachary Rhodes, (the ancestor of all of that name in Rhode Island), purchased of the Indians large tracts of land in the Westerly part of the State, one purchase alone, of the Sachem Tohamin, being of twenty-thousand acres on the east side of the "Poquontuct" or "Poquonotuct" river. In 1665, he, with others, became the purchasers of "Quidnessett," it being the northerly and north-easterly part of the present town of North Kingstown, and in 1671 removed there and joined in organizing a government for the "Proprietors" of the purchase, and settled and remained there until his death. This purchase was made of Major Atherton of Boston, and others, to whom the whole territory was given by the Sachem Coquenoquon in 1659. The part or farm allotted in the division to Robert may be seen on a copy of an ancient map, on page 62, Vol. V., Narr. His. Register. It remained in Robert and his descendants one hundred and five years, when it was sold to Judge John Allen, and the little bay upon which it fronted, then known as "Quidnesset Harbor," became and is now known as "Allen's Harbor."

The children of Robert and Katherine were:

- I. Katherine.
- II. Zorobabel.

Charles, Jr., died March 28, 1712. After the death of Katherine, Charles married Elizabeth Whaley, daughter of Theophilus, thought by some to have been one of the regicides, and by his wife Elizabeth had ten children. Whaley was an officer in Cromwell's army. Came to Virginia, 1660, to Kingstown, R. I., 1680, where he died about 1720, at the advanced age of 104 years.

Married twice, first, Jane —, second, Mary, probably Davis, 1718, August 17, who survived him. In 1706, October 20, he deeds his brother Samuel as a gift, 128 acres of the Coesit (Cowesit) purchase, being Lot 14, which came to him from his grandfather Stukeley's estate. As the eldest son of the deceased oldest son of Stukeley he sues for and recovers possession in 1696, of his grandfather's homestead estate, at "Old Warwick," and by his will gives it to his grand-daughter, Jeane Westcott, daughter of his son Phillip, but if she dies without issue, then it is to go to his four children, Robert, Margaret, Catherine, and Freelove. His will is probated 1745, October 9th. Zorobabel had issue:

- a. Phillip.
- b. Freelove.
- c. Robert.

Robert died after 1769. He removed to Newport, Nova Scotia, prior to 1765, and was living there as late as 1769, July 10, as appears from the records of North Kingstown, and from an ancient letter of his of that date, to the care of Captain John Low, of Warwick, for his brother-in-law, Joseph Strait. The last named Robert had issue:
  - 1.  $Robert^5$ .

- 3. Zorobabel<sup>5</sup>.
- 4. Stukeley<sup>5</sup>.
- 5. Mary<sup>5</sup>.

All of the above six children were born between 1720 and 1730, but the ancient records are so defaced that the precise year of the birth of each cannot be ascertained.

- Robert<sup>5</sup>, was born at Warwick, July 8, 17—, year not legible. His wife was Sarah.
- Samuel<sup>5</sup>, born June 28, (year not legible), The descendants of Samuel have not been traced.
- 3. Zorobabel<sup>5</sup>, Jr., born December 15, (year not legible), married 1759, Jan<sup>y</sup>. 1, Phebe Taylor. He removed from North Kingstown to Cranston as early as 1765, and in that year purchased of his second cousin Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, (of Stukeley<sup>3</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, of Stukeley<sup>1</sup>) the farm at Knightsville (Cranston) which had been the homestead farm of his deceased father, Stukeley<sup>3</sup>. The new town house stands upon this land, and near by are the family burial lots of Stukeley<sup>3</sup> and of the Knight family, the former marked only with rough, uninscribed stones. In 1774 Zorobabel sold the farm to Jeremiah Knight. Zorobabel was a lieutenant in the service in the War of the Revolution, and actively engaged in the raising of troops for the defense of Rhode Island. Later he was court-martialed for some delinquency, but no record of the doings of the court can now be found. He died in 1778. His wife Phebe survived him.

This Zorobabel had issue:

- a. Sarah<sup>6</sup>, born 1759, May 15, married Benjamin Randall, probably a descendant of William, of Providence, 1674.

Stukeley<sup>6</sup>, born 1761, May 3, married Lydia Dyer, of John and Rhoby (Williams) Dyer, of Charles, of Providence, of Charles, of Newport, of the first William, of London, Eng., of Boston, 1635, of Newport, 1638-40. Lydia was a descendant in the maternal line of Roger Williams. She was born 1763, February 21, and died 1804, April 9. Stukeley followed the seas, and became a master mariner in the employ of the well-known house of "Brown & Ives," of Providence. He died at sea in November, 1792. He lived in Cranston, near Ralph's Pond, from 1783 to 1789, when he probably moved to Providence. He left issue:

In 1777, while "collector of rates," was taken prisoner by the British, and carried to Newport. He was a deputy to the General Assembly, 1784. He built the Franklin House, so called, at Wickford, R. I., a noted landmark on the old post-road from Providence to South Kingstown, and now (1886) standing, though greatly modernized.

He had issue :

a. John<sup>6</sup>, Hannah<sup>6</sup>, Mary<sup>6</sup>. John was born 1765, August 26, and died at North Kingstown, 1802. He married Mary Phillips, probably a grand-daughter of the first Samuel of North Kingston. This John had a son John<sup>7</sup>, Jr., born 1793, March 3, who married Lydia Tennant, a descendant of the first Alexander. Oliver Spink Westcott, Esq., of Chicago, is a son of this last-named John, Jr. John,

* NOTE.—In 1869 burglars entered the Bank at North Kingstown, R. I., and in attempting to force an entrance to its vault by exploding gunpowder, set on fire the early record books of the town, which were deposited near, and so charred the margin of the leaves as to render many dates now illegible. Jr., died at North Kingstown, 1835, October 10, at the advanced age of 92 years, 7 months, and 5 days. In early life he was a mariner, and became a master mariner, but losing his vessel at sea, he then became a trader. He was much respected by his fellow-townsmen, and retained his faculties nearly to the close of his long life. Besides John, Jr., John, Sr., had children:

His inventory, dated 1723, March 30, embraces cows, sheep, etc. His brothers, Zorobabel and Samuel, probably settled his estate, as after his death they receipted to Teddeman Hull, Town Clerk, for the goods delivered into his hands by the Town Council of New Shoreham (Block Island). In 1708, June 14, having before bought of his brother Zorobabel, the homestead of the first Stukeley Westcott, at "Old Warwick," he sold it to Moses, son of the first John Lippitt. Phillip, father of Pardon, went with Samuel Westcott in 1720 from North Kingstown to New London, and were among the founders of the first Baptist Church at New London. This Phebe is probably the Phebe "Waistcoat" named in her cousin Benedict<sup>4</sup>, of (Josiah<sup>3</sup>), of Damaris<sup>2</sup> (Westcote) Arnold's will.

  - f. Naomi<sup>4</sup>, of Samuel<sup>3</sup>, was born 1728, August 20. Married Samuel Taber of Phillip<sup>3</sup>, of Thomas<sup>2</sup>, of Phillip<sup>1</sup>. Samuel was the brother of Pardon, who married Naomi's sister Phebe.

WESTCOTE-ARNOLD.

AMARIS<sup>2</sup>. daughter of Stukeley<sup>1</sup>, was born in England about 1620 and was about sixteen years of age when she accompanied her father to America. The date of her death is unknown, as the inscriptions upon the stones that mark her grave and also that of her husband, are now illegible. She was buried in the family burial ground of her husband, her grave being the grave next south of his, near Pelham Street, Newport, on a lot three rods square, forever dedicated by Governor Benedict Arnold as a family burial lot, lying between the present residence of Ex-Governor Van Zandt and the Aquidneck Hotel at Newport, R. I., and a few rods westerly from the old " mill."

She survived her husband who died in 1678. She married 1640, December 17, Benedict Arnold, known as Governor Benedict. Benedict Arnold was born at Learnington, England, 1615, December 21, and was the son of William Arnold and Christiana (Peak) Arnold, and came with his father to America, arriving here 1635, June 24, and accompanied him to Providence, R. I., in 1636. William Arnold, the father of Governor Benedict was also born at Leamington 1587, June 29, and was one of the twelve associates of Roger Williams in the settlement of Providence, and one of the four original settlers at Pawtuxet, R. I., where he owned large landed interests, and where he died and was buried about 1676. After remaining at Providence until November, 1651 or 1653, Benedict removed to Newport, where he died, 1678, June, aged sixty-four years. At the time of his death he was reputed the wealthiest man in the colony, as he was one of its most eminent citizens. He was the owner of large tracts of land in and around Newport, was the owner of the southern part of the large island in Narragansett Bay (Quonaniquot) Canonicut, now forming the town of Jamestown, and of one seventh part of the Pettiquanscut purchase, now South Kingstown. A copy of his will may be seen in the July number, 1885, of the R. I. Historical Magazine. In 1645, having acquired a knowledge of the Indian language, he was employed by the Colony as its interpreter in its negotiations with the Indian tribes. In 1670, he was chosen by the General Assembly as the agent of the Colony to go to England, to protect its rights under the Charter against the claims of Connecticut. In 1654 and 1660 he was chosen one of the Governor's "Assistants." In 1657, 1662, and 1663, he was chosen "President" of the Colony, the highest office under the first Charter of 1643. In 1663 he was named in the second Charter as Governor, and was afterwards elected by the people to that office in 1663, 1664, 1665, 1666, 1669, 1670, 1671, 1672, 1677, and 1678, and died that year in office.

The "Old Mill" at Newport, which for many years has excited so much of antiquarian interest, belonged to him, and is referred to in his will as "my mill." This mill, in form and architectural features, closely resembles a mill which stood on the Arnold estate at Leamington.

The original seal of Governor Arnold, with a mahogany handle, bearing the letters B. A. and an anchor, is now in the archives of the Rhode Island Historical Society. The official chair he occupied when in 1663 he received the Royal charter from England, is in the possession of the Redwood Library at Newport.

The inscription with the arms of his family are distinctly legible upon his grave stone. He married first, Mary, daughter of John and Elizabeth Turner, of "Tanton" (Taunton) 1670-71, March 9. She died 1690, December 16. Second, Sarah, daughter of Thomas and Sarah (Sherman) Mumford. She was born 1668, and died 1746, October 14. Governor Coddington came to Boston with Governor Winthrop, and leaving there because of religious differences, came with Ann Hutchinson and others to the island of Aquidneck, now Rhode Island, and became one of its earliest settlers. Colonel William survived his wife Content, and married, 1722, October 11, Jane, daughter of Gabriel Bernon, the noted Huguenot exile.

The celebrated "Century Sermon" of Rev. John Callender is dedicated to Governor Coddington as "the Honorable William Coddington, Esq." Colonel William, the husband of Content, was speaker of the House of Deputies, 1722-23-24-25-26.

Married 1805, January 3, Patience, daughter of Freegift and Elizabeth (Matthews) Coggeshall. She was born 1685, December 6, and died 1721, December 21. Freegift was the grandson of John Coggeshall, who left Massachusetts with Ann Hutchinson, on account of religious differences, and became one of the first settlers of the island of Rhode Island, and upon the union of the four towns, Newport, Portsmouth, Warwick, and Providence into one colony, was chosen its first President (Governor) 1647-48.

The children of Benedict were:

- a. Caleb<sup>5</sup>, born died before 1727, and before his father, and is not named in his father's will.
- b. Oliver<sup>5</sup>, was a cooper by trade, and with his brother Benedict<sup>5</sup> removed to Norwich, Conn., about 1730. He lived on "Little Plain," so called, at a corner known in 1750 as "Oliver Arnold's corner." He never acquired either property or prominence. At his death he left a widow and five children in straitened circumstances, owning only a small house and garden. Of his children we only know that he had a son Freegift, who was educated by his uncle General Benedict. He entered the naval service and fought under Paul Jones with distinguished gallantry. Returning from one of his cruises ill, he soon died, leaving no issue. Another son, Oliver, was of a roving disposition, and given to the making of doggerel and satirical rhymes. He also went to sea, and for a time served in the navy. He was a patriotic young man, and severely denounced the treasonable conduct of his uncle Benedict. An Elizabeth, thought to be another child of Oliver, died at Norwich, Conn., 1852, January 15, aged 92. She never married, and is said to have been the last of the name in that locality.

He as well as his brother were coopers by trade, but being of an active and enterprising nature, Benedict soon left his trade and engaged in mercantile pursuits, and began to take an interest in public affairs. He was chosen collector of taxes, one of the selectmen, and a captain in the militia. In 1752 he was one of the commissioners to build the "Congregational Meeting House." In 1733, November 8, he married widow Hannah King, whose maiden name was Lathrop. She died in 1759, aged 59 years. She is said to have been a "pattern of patience, piety, and virtue." One of her letters, written 1754, April 12, to her son, who afterwards became General Benedict, is full of good advice, and shows her deep interest in the future welfare of this then wayward youth.

Their children were as follows, but it is said that only two of them, Benedict and Hannah, lived to maturity:

- 1. Benedict<sup>6</sup>, of Benedict<sup>5</sup>, was born 1738, August 15, died 1739, April 30.
- 2. Benedict<sup>6</sup>, known to history as General Benedict, was born 1741, January 3, at Norwich, and died at London, England, 1801, June 14. It is well known how, after conducting himself with marked gallantry at Ticonderoga; in the march to and in the attack upon Quebec ; and in the great battle at Behmus Height ; in September, 1780, he sought unsuccessfully to betray the cause of his country, receiving as a reward of his treachery $50,000 and a commission as brigadier-general in the British army. As a boy he is said to have been full of wit, fond of playing tricks upon his fellows, and at the same time bold, overbearing, independent and ambitious. He served for a time as an apprentice in the apothecary shop of Dr. Dan. Lothrop, a celebrated physician of Norwich, whose stock of drugs was very large for that time, supplying, as it did, the whole country between New York and Boston. He was twice married, first, 1767, February 27, to Margaret, daughter of Samuel Mansfield. She died 1775, June 19. Second, 1779, April 8, to Margaret, daughter of Judge Edward Shippee, of Pennsylvania. She died 1804, August 24. His descendants are now living in London and Canada, but we do not trace them.
- 3. Hannah<sup>6</sup>, of Benedict<sup>5</sup>, born 1742, December 9, died unmarried, at Montague, Canada, in 1803. She is said to have been an accomplished woman and a favorite sister of General Benedict, and followed him to England.

- VIII. Caleb<sup>4</sup>, son of Benedict<sup>3</sup>, died before 1727, and before his father, and is not named in the latter's will.

By his second wife, Mary, Benedict<sup>3</sup> had:

1x. Comfort<sup>4</sup>, born 1765, May 21, married, it is supposed, William Codding-ton, of Thomas, of Governor William, a cousin of her sister Content's husband. He was born 1690, January 1. Some have it 1691, March 1, and February 1. He was killed 1744 on a wharf at Newport, by an explosion of powder taken there to supply the magazine of a privateer then fitting for a cruise.

He was the son of Lodowick, and grandson of Dr. Gilbert Updike, who left New Amsterdam, now New York, in 1664, when it was taken by the English, and came to Rhode Island. Dr. Updike was an intimate friend of Dean Berkeley, who upon his departure for England presented him with a massive and elaborately wrought silver pitcher, now in the possession of his descendants. S., August 18; that his mother was Freelove Arnold, of Newport, daughter of Benedict. See Rhode Island Historical Magazine, vol. ii., page 252. This Freelove could not have been the daughter of Governor Benedict, for she died in 1730. It may be that the above Freelove4, of Josiah<sup>3</sup>, survived her husband Lillington, and married Adams, of Milford, where she had many relatives. He also commanded a company at the fight at "Mount Hope," Bristol, R. James was the second rector of Trinity Church, Newport, organized late in 1698. After a successful pastorate of 46 years, he died in 1750. His grave is in the yard of that ancient church, and a bust portrait of him may be seen upon its walls. Hon. James, Jun., was born at Newport 1710, April, and died 1788, February 15. He was a lawyer. In 1732 was elected Attorney-General of the Colony, and was continued in office till 1741, when the law appointing one Attorney-General was repealed. Ralph, Jun., came to Newport from Scituate, Mass., about 1680, and carried on his trade of shipwright, and became wealthy. Patience<sup>4</sup> married, second, 1711, August 9, Robert Taylor, a noted shipwright and ship owner of Newport. He died 1762, November 26th. After his death his lands at Canonicut were divided between Benjamin Belcher, the minor child of a deceased sister; Thomas Northup, the husband of his sister Damaris: Robert Taylor, the husband of his sister Patience;

There was a James who died 1710, and another James, perhaps a son, who, 1739, was chosen one of seven special constables to enforce a strict observance of the "Sunday Law." He died of small pox at Coaster's Island (hospital) the same year.

He was the son of Edward, of Hastings, Sussex, England, called to the bar 1579, M. P. 1597, knighted and made Lord Chief Baron of Exchequer of Ireland, died 1606. ## Amos<sup>2</sup> Westcote, the Second Son of Stukeley,<sup>1</sup> and some of his descendants.

MOS<sup>2</sup> in a deposition taken 1685, April 12, states that he was then 54 years of age. He was, therefore, born in England in 1631, and when a child was brought by his father to America, first to Salem, then to Providence, then to "Old Warwick." Here he passed the remainder of his life. He died between January, 1686 and May, 1688. The last record of him bears date at Warwick, 1685, where it states that he is then "very sick," and he appoints his loving brother-inlaw, Samuel Stafford, to make up such reckonings as are needful, and after his debts are paid to dispose of his lands as he (Samuel) thinks best to the members of his family most needing it. Amos lived on a small farm next to his father's, purchased of his brother Robert in 1667, when the latter moved to North Kingstown. The contract of purchase provided that Robert should have one-half of the apples that grew in the orchard adjoining their father's orchard for seven years. And if Robert in six or seven years should desire to re-purchase the place, Amos will "resign" it to him upon receiving one-half of a mare five years old, one horse two years old, two "stears" four years old, and "£10 in peage at 8 penny." In 1672 Amos completes the purchase of the farm, but gives Robert liberty to take the fruit of "seaven" apple trees for seven years, and the trees are marked with a "pege" on the south side and a hole by the roots.

In 1670 we first learn of Amos and his family living at his father's house and having the care of him. This was probably soon after the death of Stukeley's wife, of whom scarce any record remains. Amos was on the roll of freeman in 1655, was one of the commissioners to run the town lines in 1665, assessor to collect the rates to pay the expenses of getting the charter in 1666, and chosen Deputy to the Colonial Assembly in 1665, 1670, and 1671. He held many other minor town offices. He married first, 1677, July 13, Sarah, daughter of the first Thomas Stafford, of Old Warwick, and sister of Samuel who married Mercy the sister of Amos. Sarah died in 1669. He married second, 1670, January 9, Deborah the sister of Sarah. Deborah was born 1650–51, and died in 1706. This is the Deborah who contended in the courts with Zerobabel for the possession of his grandfather's homestead. See ante, Stukeley's life. Amos had children, as follows:

- I Amos<sup>3</sup>.
- II. Solomon<sup>3</sup>.
- III. Sarah<sup>3</sup>.
- IV. Penelope<sup>3</sup>.
- V. Mercy<sup>3</sup>.
- VI. Luranah<sup>3</sup>, or Lurania.
  - AMOS<sup>3</sup> Jun., born 1668, and died 1692 at Oyster Bay, Long Island, at the house of William Carpenter, son of the first William, of Pawtuxet, in 1692, unmarried. Many Rhode Islanders removed in 1664 and later to Oyster Bay, then called Musketo Cove, spelt in the early records "Muskedacouve." Amos was the son of Sarah. For further account of this Amos, see Stukeley's life.
- II. SOLOMON<sup>3</sup> appears to have been an imbecile from his youth. He is called a "person devoid of reason and understanding." He is the one referred to in Deborah's petition to the General Assembly in 1697, as one who "of necessity must depend upon her." The law suit of Deborah's resulting unfavorably to her in 1700, Solomon goes to live with his sister Sarah's husband, Abraham Lockwood, where he died in 1711. The town council of Warwick sold certain lands originally owned by Solomon's grandfather Stukeley, for his support, and in 1711, March 13, his cousin Zerobabel<sup>3</sup>, who as the oldest son of Robert<sup>2</sup>, who was the oldest son of Stukeley<sup>1</sup>, by the law of primogeniture, inherited these lands, and his sister Laurania, and the husbands of his other sisters, ratify and confirm these sales and release the town council from all liability on account of the same.

With the death of Amos, Jun., and Solomon, the male line of Amos, Senior, became extinct.

III. SARAH<sup>3</sup>, born about 1673, died 1711. Prior to 1706 she married Abraham Lockwood, of Warwick. He was born probably in England in 1670, and died in 1747, June, it is said of cancer in the leg. He came to Rhode Island before 1700. He was the first of the name in the Colony, and is the progenitor of all the Rhode Island Lockwoods. After Sarah's death he married Priscilla, widow of Jeremiah Crandall, and daughter of John and Ann (Gorton) Warner. She survived Abraham, dying 1750, February 24. Abraham and Sarah had children: I. Abraham<sup>4</sup>; II. Amos<sup>4</sup>; III. Adam<sup>4</sup>; IV. Deborah<sup>4</sup>; V. Sarah<sup>4</sup>.

For their children, see line of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, and his grandson, Josiah<sup>4</sup>. In them, in the fifth generation from the first Stukeley, was again united the blood of the Westcotes and Lockwoods. The grave of Ethallanah is in the old family burial ground of her father Josiah<sup>4</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, and upon what was Josiah's home farm, as well as the graves of her father and mother, all marked by stones legibly inscribed. A number of unmarked graves of other members of the family are near by. The site is in Cranston upon land now owned by the state, purchased a few years since for the erection of buildings for its reformatory institutions. The changes of grade and the erection of these buildings will soon remove the last vestiges of this ancient family burial lot.

- c. Jacob<sup>5</sup>, of Abraham<sup>4</sup>, was born 1730, married , October 22, Anna Blanchard, daughter of Timothy. Jacob was living in 1761, and then sold land in Cranston to William Westcott.

Savage has it that Penelope probably married James "Barker," of Newport, and this error is perpetuated with a change of name to "Baker" in the "Howland Genealogy."

WESTCOTE—STAFFORD.

Mercy<sup>2</sup> (Westcote) Stafford, the Daughter of Stukeley', and some of her descendants.

ERCY<sup>2</sup> was the daughter of the first Stukeley<sup>1</sup>. The time and place of her birth have not been learned. She died at "Old Warwick," 1700, August 24. Some have it March 25. She married, about 1660, Samuel Stafford. He was born 1636, and died 1718, March 20.

Samuel was the son of Thomas and Elizabeth Stafford. Thomas was born at Warwickshire, England, about 1605; came to Plymouth as early as 1626; from thence he removed, 1638, March, to Portsmouth or Newport, R. I., afterwards to Providence, where he constructed the first grist mill at the mouth of the Mooshausick River. In 1650 he removed to Warwick, and erected the first grist mill there at the head of Mill Cove. Thomas was admitted a freeman in 1638. It is related of him that he died at Warwick in 1677, "aged and worn out with labor, but industrious and prosperous." Thomas Stafford Drowne, D. D., of Garden City, Long Island, a descendant, has in his possession the original family "arms," carved in wood, brought from England, bearing the inscription, "The family of Stafford, of Warwickshire."

Samuel, husband of Mercy, was admitted a freeman 1669. He was chosen one of the Governor's "assistants" in 1674, but declined to serve. In 1679-82-86, and 1705, he was elected a Deputy from Warwick to the Colonial Assembly. He was a man of influence, and much esteemed. His two sisters, Sarah and Deborah, were the wives of Mercy's brother, Amos. He died in Old Warwick at the ripe old age of eighty-three. Both Mercy and her husband, and many of their earliest descendants, are buried in the old Stafford family burial ground near Conimicut Point.

Mercy (Westcote) Stafford and Samuel had ten children, viz:

I. Stukeley<sup>3</sup>.

II. Amos<sup>3</sup>.

- III. Mercy<sup>3</sup>.
- IV. Sarah<sup>3</sup>.
- V. Sarah<sup>3</sup>.
- VI. Samuel<sup>3</sup>.

    - I. STUKELEY<sup>3</sup> STAFFORD, son of Mercy<sup>2</sup>, was born at "Old Warwick," 1661, November 7. Little is known of him. He died before his father, and when a young man.
    - II. AMOS<sup>3</sup> STAFFORD, son of Mercy<sup>2</sup>, was born at "Old Warwick," 1665, November 8. Some have it January 8. He died there 1760, October 8, aged 94 years. He married, 1689, December 19, Mary Burlingame, daughter of the first Roger, of Stonington 1654, of Warwick 1660, and Deputy to the Colonial Assembly 1690. She was born 1668, January 14, and died 1760, October 14, aged 92 years, surviving her husband only eight days. The Boston Post, of 1760, October 10, in speaking of the death of Amos, says he always " supported a fair character, and left behind him a numerous offspring, and a widow with whom he had lived " in great union and tenderness " seventy-two years." He was noted for his industry, regarding four hours of the twentyfour as all that should be devoted to sleep. He was a Quaker, as were also his wife and family. He was for many years the trusted treasurer of the town, and in 1705 and 1721 one of its Deputies to the Colonial Assembly. Before death he became blind, and in his last illness a daughter more than seventy years of age was his affectionate nurse and attendant. Amos last named had children as follows :
      - I. Mary<sup>4</sup>.
      - II. Samuel<sup>4</sup>.
      - III. Mercy<sup>4</sup>.

      - VI. Patience<sup>4</sup>.
      - VII. Freelove<sup>4</sup>.

Devotion, probably a descendant of Edward, of Roxbury, Mass., 1645. This surname "Devotion" although unusual is found in "Savage." The only other instance of its early appearance in Rhode Island is in Barrington, where one John Devotion appears as a school teacher from 1702 to 1715, when his services were so well appreciated that he is then engaged for a longer term of twenty years. It may be that he was the husband of the above Elizabeth. IX. PATIENCE<sup>3</sup>, daughter of Mercy<sup>3</sup> (Wescote) Stafford, married

> "The Dame who takes her rest within this tomb, "Had Rachel's comely face; * * * * * * * "Abigail's wisdom; Lydia's purer heart; "Martha's just care, and Mary's better part."—

Before the marriage of Jabez Jun., to Patience, his father writes to his former pastor, Rev. John Cotton, at Plymouth, expressing a wish that his son should marry the pastor's daughter Sarah, and intimates by way of return, that he has a daughter that might suit one of the pastor's sons. But the charms of Patience seem to have interrupted this contemplated union. Both Jabez<sup>3</sup> and his father were blacksmiths, and conducted a successful business, the inventory of the latter exceeding $15,000. Jabez<sup>3</sup>, was a man much respected. He was a vestryman and warden of St. Michael's Church, and represented the town in the "General Court" of Massachusetts, Bristol being then in her jurisdiction.

V. JEREMIAH.

EREMIAH<sup>2</sup> WESTCOT, was the youngest son of Stukeley<sup>1</sup>. He was probably quite young at the time of the arrival of his father in America, and accompanied him first to Providence, 1638, then to Warwick, 1643. In 1654, July 13, his name first appears as a witness to the deed of purchase from the Sachem Taccoman of " Potawomoot " neck. In 1664, he is appointed an officer of the town of Warwick to take an Indian prisoner from there to Newport. In 1666 he is chosen a committee to go to "Namket" and "Coeset" and warn the Indians not to plant on the town's land. He married 1665, July 27, Eleanor England, daughter of William, of Portsmouth, R. I., 1644. He was made a freeman 1672. It is supposed Eleanor survived her husband, as in 1691, February 2, " Eleanor, widow," with Jeremiah her son, deed certain lands. Jeremiah was a farmer and passed nearly all of his life at "Old Warwick," residing on land opposite to and given to him by his father for life. He died in 1686 and was probably buried in the burial ground near his farm where his father was buried. He left no will, and the town council of Warwick, as was the custom in those days, made one for him. Jeremiah had eight children, all of whom were born at "Old Warwick," and all of his six sons survived him. They were as follows :

- II. Eleanor<sup>3</sup>.

Jeremiah, Son of the First Jeremiah. AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

I. JEREMIAH<sup>3</sup>, called Junior, the first child of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup> was born 1666, Narwick where he always to the age of ninety-one years. He was mar-

Thursday, October 7, and died in ried prior to 1698, January 20, for at that date we find his wife Mary joining him in a deed. He married Mary Warner, of "old Warwick," a near neighbor. She was the daughter of John and Ann (Gorton) Warner, of Warwick, 1645, of John, of the first John of Providence, 1637, of Warwick, 1643. An ancient receipt recites that in 1712, April 21, he received from his "father in law" John Warner the following articles: "two y' of new silk to make a hood, one hood redy made, one black silk hankercheef, one mixed collered silk hankercheef, two blue calleco aprons, two pear of wash lether gloves, twenty six caps, two good white hoods, and one old one, eleven hed bands, good as new, two old ones, fore linen shifts, two flanlin shifts, all good as new, one half silk handcercheef, six pettecots, fore mantes, a riding gound, a riding hood, and a cloack, six pear of good stockings, and a pear of old wash lether gloves, one new white hollon apron, fore wooin (woolen) aprons, two bonnits, one new one, two peares of shoues, one wooden heels the other lether heels, pillow and cloth and bible, one pear of stays, and one pear of linin one pear of wolin gloves, three peacs of earthern ware, sisers with other nesesneary." "Then Received of my father in law John Warner the particulars Above named I say received by me in behalfe of myselfe and bretheren." Signed "Jeremia Westcot." On June 6, 1712, Jeremiah also receipts, now to his brother in law, John Warner, for "nine yeards of wosted and druget which my mother bestowed on my daughter Elinor Westcot, which in the inventory of my father in law, John Warners Estate amounted to thirty one shillings and six pence." Jeremiah<sup>3</sup> was called "weaver." It seems that prior to 1698, one John Micater, came to what is now the village of Apponaug in Warwick, and built a "Fulling Mill" on the stream that runs from Gorton's pond to Apponaug cove. In 1693, January 24, Jeremiah purchased this mill of Micater, one of the conditions of the purchase being that Micater should teach Jeremiah the art of fulling. Hence he is called "weaver." This was probably the first fulling mill in the Colony. How Jeremiah prospered in the business is not known. After an ownership of four years in 1702, April 13, he sells the mill to Samuel Greene, son of Deputy Gov. John Greene for £150. In 1722, July 24, he sells to Samuel Gorton his mansion house at "Old Warwick," where he then lives and the lot of six acres, bounded northerly by the road to the neck, southerly by land of Moses Lippitt, and westerly by Main Street. This was at "old Warwick," opposite the home lot of his grandfather Stukeley, and which his grandfather deeded to his son Jeremiah<sup>2</sup> for life and to his grandson, Jeremiah after his father's death. Where Jeremiah<sup>3</sup> resided the remaining thirty-five years of his life is not known. He may have removed to that part of Warwick which in 1741, was formed into the town of Coventry, whose public records for the first twenty years of its existence are unfortunately lost. These records, containing as they did, the deeds, wills, proceedings in the settlement of deceased persons estates, and probably registered marriages and births of that period would supply many links now missing in the chain of family lineage. In the absence of family, church or town records, and of any will or other probate proceedings relating to the settlement of his estate, it has been found difficult to trace the children of this Jeremiah<sup>3</sup> * except in the case of his daughter Eleanor. See Eleanor's line post p. 61. Jeremiah<sup>3</sup> had a son.

- Jeremiah<sup>4</sup>, who resided in Warwick, and who was of age in 1719, when his father deeds him certain lands. His wife's name was Sarah. This was Sarah Smith, of Benjamin and Phebe (Arnold) Smith, of Warwick, of Benjamin, of the first Christopher, of Providence 1650, and ante. Sarah was born 1695, May 30. She is named in her father's will in 1729, as the wife of Jeremiah. In 1746 Jeremiah is "Overseer of the Poor," in Warwick.
- II. Thomas<sup>4</sup>, was another son of Jeremiah<sup>3</sup>. He was born at Old Warwick, in 1702. His wife's name was Mary. He had a son, a Jeremiah<sup>5</sup>, to whom his father Thomas deeds lands as early as 1725.
- III. Eleanor<sup>4</sup>, the only known daughter of Jeremiah, was born at "Old Warwick" about 1710-11. About 1731-32, she married William Stone, *Nore.—There was a Jeremiah who died at South Kingstown in 1736. Wife, Tabitha. After his death Tabitha married, 1739, February 8, Jonathan Clark, of Charlestown, R. I. There was also the Jeremiah who in 1760 emigrated to Nova Scotia. See Appendix D. There is also the Thomas who went to Bristol Co., Mass. See Appendix A. There is also a Mercy, of Warwick, born 1727, died 1808. See Appendix A. And a George, senior, in 1717, in that part of Warwick afterwards Coventry. See Appendix A. All of the foregoing are believed to be of the line of Jeremiah<sup>3</sup>, of the first Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>; but this is conjectural.

of John, of the first Hugh, born in England 1638, of Warwick 1666. Hugh was a blacksmith, and succeeded to the business of his father-inlaw, Peter Busecott, the first "smith" in Warwick. William was born in 1712, in Warwick, but when he was quite young his father removed to a farm at Meshantituck, in Cranston. There William remained until 1779, when he went to Coventry, where he died in 1786. He was buried at Scituate, in the family burial ground of his son Jeremiah. Eleanor died at Cranston prior to her husband's removal to Coventry. The date of her death is not known. She was no doubt buried in the ancient "Stone" family burial ground in Cranston. Her husband is described as a man of industry, integrity, and much respected and beloved as a "kind husband, tender parent, and good neighbour."

He is said to have possessed great business ability, and was often consulted by his fellow-townsmen in regard to their personal affairs. His judgment was sound, and his opinions of value. In form and features he did not resemble those of the "Stone blood," but bore in a marked degree the type and features of the "Westcotts." Mr. Hopkins is a gentleman who devotes all of the time he can spare from his business to antiquarian and genealogical research. He is the author of "The Home Lots of The Early Settlers of the Providence Plantations," a work of much interest and value. To locate these lots with accuracy from imperfect records, after the lapse of two and a half centuries, was a work of great labor, requiring a most careful and critical examination of all of the earlier surveys and deeds, in which the description of the lands and streets was clothed in language brief, untechnical, and often ambiguous.

III. PERSIS<sup>3</sup>, daughter of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, was born at Old Warwick, in 1670, and died there in 1673, October

AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

IV. STUKELEY<sup>3</sup>, was the second son of the first Jeremiah. He was born at "Old Warwick," 1672, October 1, and died flukty mett coz at Cranston, 1750, May 25, in the 78th year of his age. He married 1693, December 21, Prosilla (Priscilla) daughter of Samuel and Anna Bennett, of East Greenwich, R. I. 1652. She died 1754, April 9. Stukeley was a weaver by trade, but he also carried on a farm. In early life he removed from "Old Warwick" to that part of the adjoining town of Providence that is now Cranston. His farm was that now owned by the State of Rhode Island and where its Reformatory Institutions are located. It extended in a northwesterly direction to "Monkey town," now Knightsville. His family burial lot where he and a number of his family are buried was at this village just within the forks of the Scituate and Natick roads, and near the new Town-house. There may still be seen their graves marked by rough wall stones without inscription. Immediately adjoining is the later burial ground of the Knight family who subsequently owned this part of the farm.

Stukeley<sup>3</sup>, had four children: Josiah, Stukeley, Freelove and Benjamin.

I. Josiah<sup>4</sup>, the eldest, was born at "Old Warwick," 1694, December 2, and died at Cranston, 1778, September 22. He is called Junior, having an uncle of the same name. He was made a freeman of the town of Providence, 1720. He took under the will of his father 35 acres of the home farm and his father's dwelling house. This was located within a few rods of the building recently erected by the State as a "Reform School for boys." There he and his wife lived, died and were buried. His family burial place was near his house and just north of the large stable the State has built there. In 1885 the graves were plainly visible, his own, his wife's and that of his daughter Ethellanah, being the only ones marked by inscribed stones, but the new grading of the grounds by the State authorities will soon obliterate every trace of this ancient burial place. Josiah4, married 1719, February 28, Frances Clark. She was born 1698 and died 1775, August 16. Josiah had but two children, Priscilla and Ethellanah.

- a. Priscilla<sup>5</sup>, born about 1720, died married 1741, November 26, John Battey of Warwick. John was born 1720, March 13. He was of John of Samson Battey, one of the first proprietors of East Greenwich, 1677. Priscilla had two children, viz.:

- b. Ethellanah<sup>5</sup>, of Josiah<sup>4</sup>, born 1726, December 26, died 1791. Married 1748, July 24, O. S. Joseph Lockwood. He was born 1728, May 14 in Warwick. He was a son of Abraham Lockwood and grandson of the first Abraham who married Sarah<sup>3</sup> Westcott, daughter of Amos<sup>2</sup>, the son of the first Stukeley. See Joseph, in the line of Amos<sup>2</sup> of Stukeley<sup>1</sup>, page 39, ante.

Ethellanah had eight children as follows.

- 7. Joseph<sup>6</sup>, born 1765, September 19.
- 8. Barbara<sup>6</sup>, born 1769, January 17.
- 11. Stukeley<sup>4</sup>, second son of Stukeley<sup>3</sup>, was born 1698, May 2. He is called upon the records, Junior. He died at Cranston, 1736, October 8, at the age of 38 years, and before his father. He is called "weaver." He was admitted a freeman of Providence in 1720. He married 1723, or 1725, April 15, probably the former year, Bethiah Westcott, his cousin, the daughter of Benjamin. See Bethiah<sup>4</sup>, of Benjamin<sup>3</sup>. After her husband's death, Bethiah was authorized by the Town Council of Providence to manage his estate, and bring up her minor children. She was living as late as 1753.

He received under the will of his grandfather 35 acres of land, part of his grandfather's farm, as the only male heir of his deceased father. In 1757 he sells to William Burton this land, and removes to the adjoining town of Coventry. In 1778 he disposes of the last of his lands in Coventry, and then or earlier removes to Cheshire, Mass. He may have lived for a time at Stonington, Conn., as some of his children are said to have been born there. He was one of many Rhode Island farmers who about this period emigrated to Berkshire County. An interesting account of this early emigration may be seen in a pamphlet published in 1888, by the Berkshire Historical and Scientific Society. Its author was Hon. J. M. Barker, of Pittsfield, himself a decendent of one of these emigrants. Stukeley<sup>5</sup>, married, 1753, March 25, Anna Wells, of South Kingstown, daughter of Peter. Referring back now to 4. James<sup>6</sup>, p. 75, it should be stated that there is a great disagreement among inquirers as to his descendants. Some have it that his wife was Hannah —, who died at Cheshire in 1794, and that his children were Nathan<sup>7</sup>, Samuel<sup>7</sup>, Dickens<sup>7</sup> (who was living at Cheshire as late as 1830, and who had sons, Riley<sup>8</sup> and Jarvis<sup>8</sup>, a mute, and a daughter now dead, who was the wife of Rev. John Vincent), Rhoda<sup>7</sup>, who married — Chase, Abigail<sup>7</sup>, who married a Grinnell, Sarah<sup>7</sup>, who married a Williams, Charlotte<sup>7</sup>, and Candace<sup>7</sup>. James Westcott Lester, Esq., of Saratoga Springs, a great grandson of James<sup>6</sup>, gives the line as stated in the text.

- Lydia<sup>6</sup>, of Stukeley<sup>5</sup>, was born at Cheshire, Mass., in 1771, and died there 1837, January 21, unmarried. She names in her will Dorcas, who was probably her sister.

She was baptised 1780, January 13, and died prior to 1808. He married, second, Mary Hanks; and third, Mrs. Clarissa Cordela (Mather) Covell, who died in 1845. By his first wife he had seven children. Of these only Seth<sup>7</sup> and Jesse<sup>7</sup> are known, who removed to Western New York prior to 1830. Stukeley<sup>6</sup>, in 1859, June, when 90 years of age, writes that his health was then comfortable for the most part of the time, that he had not been confined to the house one day in three years, that he walked as much as a mile in a day, and that his chief business then was to take good care of himself.

 Reuben<sup>6</sup>, of Stukeley<sup>5</sup>, lived at Cheshire until 1815, when he went to Milford, N. Y., where he died 1848, October 16. He married, 1795, February 22, Susanna Levings. She was born at Killingby, Conn., 1776, November 7, and died at Milford, 1864, October 14.

A descendant who has examined this line with much care, credits Stukeley<sup>4</sup> with only eleven children, including a son Rufus, who married Mary Blanchard and had nine children, and omitting Lydia.

III. Freelove<sup>4</sup>, was the only daughter of Stukeley<sup>3</sup>. She was born at "Old Warwick," 1702, July 1. She married Joshua Turner, of Cranston, then Providence. He died about 1800, at a very advanced age. His farm was in the southwesterly part of Cranston, and is still known as the "Turner farm." There is the old family burial place, where he and his wife and some of their descendants are buried. The inscriptions, if any, upon the earlier gravestones, are now illegible.

Thomas was of Thomas, of the first Major Tom, whose daughter, Freelove, married Samuel<sup>3</sup> Westcott. See line of Samuel<sup>3</sup>. Thomas Fenner, the husband of Freelove<sup>5</sup>, had children, Abbott, Anthram, Elizabeth, Sarah, and Turner. But whether any except Turner were by his wife Freelove is not known.
- 1. Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, of Stukeley<sup>3</sup>, was born at Warwick 1709, December 31, and died at Coventry, 1801, April 11, in the 92d year of his age. His wife's Christian name was Ann, but her maiden surname is not known. In his early youth, Benjamin removed with his father to that part of Providence now Cranston. He was by trade a weaver, but he was also a farmer. At the death of his father in 1750, he received thirty-five acres, being the northerly portion of his father's farm. This land lay in the angle formed by the junction of the Scituate and Natick roads at what is now Knightsville. It embraced the family burial lot at the junction of these roads. In 1750 he grants permission to his "loving brother" Josiah and his sister Freelove Turner, to bury their dead in this lot, and states that his father and mother and others of the family are buried there. In 1765, he sells this place to his kinsman Zorobabel<sup>5</sup> Westcott, Jun., a great great grandson of the first Stukeley. See Zorababel<sup>5</sup> in Robert<sup>2</sup> line ante p. 4. In 1774, Zorababel sells it to Jeremiah Knight, who located his family burial ground adjoining the older one of the Westcott family. In 1768, Benjamin<sup>4</sup> purchases 150 acres of land in Coventry, and then, or earlier, removes to that town, where he passed the remainder of his long life.

He had five children, as follows :

a. Joseph<sup>5</sup>, who died in 1800, the year before his father. He left no issue. It is supposed he never married.

- b. Darkis<sup>5</sup> (Dorcas) who married Gorton. She died before her father, leaving a daughter Anna, who is named in her grandfather's will.
- e. Freelove<sup>5</sup>, who married Thomas Waterman. She had a son Thomas<sup>6</sup>.
   Freelove was living in 1794.
- d. Almy<sup>5</sup>, or Amey, married, 1753, March 22, James Waterman, of Cranston. He was born 1732, November 3. He was of Zuriel and Zeruida (Harris) Waterman, of Capt. Richard, of Nathaniel, of the first Col. Richard, of Providence, 1638. It is thought Almy married a second time, —— Greene.
- e. Lydia<sup>5</sup>, married, 1755, October 9, William Stone, Jun., of Coventry. William, Jun., was second cousin to Lydia, being the son of William who married Eleanor<sup>4</sup> Westcott, of Jeremiah<sup>3</sup>. For issue of Lydia and William, Jun., see line of Eleanor<sup>4</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>3</sup>, ante page 61.

V. JOSIAH<sup>3</sup>, SON OF THE FIRST JEREMIAH, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

V. JOSIAH<sup>3</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, of Stukeley<sup>1</sup>, was the third son of the first Jeremiah.

August He was born at "Old Warwick, 1675, December 2, and died in that part of the town of Providence now Cranston, 1721, November 11, aged 46 years. All of his life, after he had reached the years of manhood, was passed in the latter town. He married, 1701, January 1, Hannah Gardner, of George and Tabitha (Tefft) Gardner, of "Kingstown," of the first George. After Josiah's death, his widow married Thomas, son of the first Roger Burlingame. She died after 1756. Josiah seems to have been a man of religious life. His Bible, now in the possession of Mrs. Almira Greene, of "Old Warwick," has upon its fly leaf some religious verse, beginning, "Give me grace to run ye race," "That heaven may be my resting place," etc. Josiah owned a large farm near the "Ore Bed," in Cranston, from one to one and a half miles west of the Oak Lawn Station on the N. Y. & N. E. Rail Road, where he lived and where he died. He and several generations of his descendants were buried in a family burial ground upon this farm, but their graves are marked only by rough and uninscribed stones. Josiah also owned and run a saw mill upon an adjoining stream called Meshantituc. He was also a surveyor, and frequently called upon to locate and define the "shares" in, or "rights" to, land which were bought and sold by the early proprietors before they were located. He was known as Capt. Josiah, and by his industry, sound judgment and high integrity gained a wide influence in the community.

Josiah had nine children, as follows :

- I. Nicholas<sup>4</sup>.
- II. Hannah<sup>4</sup>, born 1704, August 11. Died 1713, February 1.
- III. Tabitha<sup>4</sup>.
- IV. Josiah<sup>4</sup>.
  - Nathan<sup>4</sup>. V.
- VI. Damaris<sup>4</sup>.
- VII. Caleb<sup>4</sup>.
- VIII. Oliver<sup>4</sup>.
  - IX.  $Hannah^4$ , born 1718 or 19, October 10. Died 1723, September —

- 1. Nicholas<sup>4</sup>, the eldest child, was born 1702, August 27. He was admitted a "freeman" of Providence in 1730. In 1728, after the death of his father and the remarriage of his mother, he was appointed by the Town Council the custodian of all of his father's estate, excepting what had been allotted to the widow, until his brothers and sisters should become of age, giving bond as custodian, with his uncle "Beniman" as surety. Like his father, he was also a surveyor. In 1741 he sold his farm at Meshantituc, and probably then removed to the compact part of the town of Providence. The date of his death is unknown. Some have given it as 1736, June 7. But this is erroneous. His wife's name was Sarah. He had but one known child, Jeremiah<sup>5</sup>.
  - a. Jeremiah<sup>5</sup>, of Nicholas<sup>4</sup>, above, was born in Cranston, then Providence, and married, 1764, April 26, Phebe Barton, of Warwick, of William, of Andrew, of Benjamin, of the first Rufus, of Warwick 1642. They had issue:

    - 2. Jeremiah<sup>6</sup>, born 1768, January 20.
    - John<sup>6</sup>, born 1769, July 9. This may be the John, father of the John, Jun., who removed to Plainfield, Conn. See Appendix John.
    - 4. Rebecca<sup>6</sup>, born 1771, March 5.
- III. Tabitha<sup>4</sup>, the third child of the first Josiah<sup>3</sup>, was born in the town of Providence, now Cranston, 1706, December 7. She married, about 1727, Henry Harris, son of Thomas and Phebe (Brown) Harris, of Thomas, of the first Thomas, who came over 1630, with Roger Williams, in the ship Lyon. Henry was born 1702, October 5; died 1787, February 16. Henry was a nephew of the Henry Harris who married Lydia Olney, the grand parents of Martha Tillinghast, who married Capt. James Westcott. See Captain James line, Samuel<sup>3</sup> line. They had issue as follows:
  - a. Phebe<sup>5</sup>, born 1728, May 29. Married Arthur Fenner, of Johnston, son of Hon. Richard Fenner, who was the son of Major Tom Fenner, son of the first Captain Arthur. Phebe died 1802, February 24. Her husband, Arthur, was born 1725, January 6, and died 1793, February 7. Their issue, if any, I have not been able to trace.
  - b. John<sup>5</sup>, born 1731, died unmarried at the island of Barbadoes, 1753, May 23.

- iv. Josiah<sup>4</sup>, the fourth child of the first Josiah, was born in Providence, now Cranston, on the farm of his father, 1709, March 6, and died there 1791, February 25, aged 82 years. He is called "cordwainer" (rope maker). He is also called Captain and Surveyor. He married, 1746, March 19, Mary Collins, of James, a descendant of the first Elizur, of Warwick. The only known child of this Josiah is
  - a. Doreas<sup>5</sup>, who married Stephen Edwards, of Cranston, and who, prior to 1800, removed to Chenango Co., N. Y. In 1802 Amos Westcott, see Appendix A, comes down from Norwich, Chenango Co. to sell Dorcas' interest in her father Josiah's estate.

Nathan, of Cranston, may have been a son of this Josiah; but this is conjectural. For Nathan see Appendix A.

v. Nathan<sup>4</sup>, of Josiah<sup>3</sup>, was Josiah's fourth child. He was born at find Warwick, 1711. March 23, some have it 1713, June, and died there 1791, February 25. Anne was born 1712, December 4, and died 1744-5, January 6. Nathan married, second, 1745, April 14, Mary, of Thomas, of John Rutenberg, of Warwick 1697. Mary was born 1726, December 10, and died 1808, May 7. Nathan settled near to the home farm of his great grandfather Stukeley, and died and was buried there. His place is still owned and occupied by the descendants of his grand-daughter Celia, who married Christopher Spencer. He was by trade a cordwainer. He was a deacon of the "Six Principle Baptist Church," and much of his time was occupied in preaching and other religious ministrations in Warwick and the adjoining towns. He and his first wife both joined the church in 1736. His Bible, an English edition of 1729, with a family record, is still owned by Mr. George W. Spencer, a descendant. VI. SAMUEL<sup>3</sup>, the sixth child of the first Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, was born at Warwick in Jamuel 3 Jostcot 1678, and died at Providence, 1716, March 17. He married Freelove Fenner. An ancient manuscript in the Rhode Island Historical Society's Library, relates of Freelove that "when a little girl going to mill over to Monkey-town," now Knightsville, "she killed a rattle snake." Freelove was the daughter of Major Thomas Fenner and Dinah (Borden) Fenner, and the grand-daughter of the first Arthur who came to America. She was born about 1683. The first Arthur died 1703. He was born in England about 1621, and is said to have served as a Lieutenant in Cromwell's army. All of Major Thomas' sons, except John who died young, attained distinction. His son Arthur was father of Arthur, Governor of Rhode Island, 1790 to 1805, October 15, when he died in office; and he was the father of James, Governor of Rhode Island, 1807 to 1811, 1824 to 1831, and 1843 to 1845. The first Arthur settled in that part of Providence which is now Cranston, near the Ocquockomaug spring, about one mile distant in a north-westwardly direction from the present "Cranston Print Works," where the remains of his ancient house may now (1886) be seen. It is called to this day the "Garrison House," from its having been a place of refuge and defense by the early settlers. The first house built in 1652, was burned by the Indians, and the present one was erected on the same site 1675-76. The great kitchen with the chambers over it, are still standing. The kitchen fire place has a breadth of about nine feet, and a height to the great oak mantle bar, of about five feet. The huge stone chimney, forty feet high and fifteen feet broad at its base, with its castellated top remains in a state of fair pres-About a quarter of a mile west of the first Arthur's house, stands the ervation. ancient mansion of his son Major Thomas, the father of Freelove (Fenner) Westcott. It was massively built, is in good repair, and is still owned and occupied by his descendants. It bears upon its great stone chimney the date of its erection, 1677. Both Arthur and his son Major Thomas, were surveyors, magistrates, and large land holders. Near by, in a pasture upon the summit of a knoll, shaded by an old oak, was the family burying ground of the first Arthur, not now enclosed, where he was buried, and where are the graves of more than thirty of his family and descendants. They are plainly marked with rough moss-covered stones, all now illegible save one erected by Edward at the grave of his mother, Rachel (Westcott) Fenner, the wife of Capt. Arthur<sup>4</sup>. She died in 1803, aged 66 years. This Edward Fenner was the great-great-grandson of the first Arthur<sup>1</sup>, through Arthur<sup>2</sup>, Edward<sup>3</sup> and Capt. Arthur<sup>4</sup>.

When the writer visited this ancient burial place, the lowing kine of the pasture had sought the shade of the old oak, and were peacefully reclining upon these graves. Is there not in some descendant of this once distinguished family, who left behind large patrimonial estates, sufficient of ancestral pride, to rescue this spot so full of historic interest from further neglect and descention?

Freelove survived her husband Samuel, and married a second time, ---- Stone. In 1747 she signs a deed as Freelove Stone. She was living in December, 1749. Samuel was a farmer, owning and living upon a farm that formed a part of the Meshantituck lands, at a locality then bearing the Indian name, Consamasett. His farm adjoined that of his brother William<sup>8</sup> on the south-east, and bounded on the banks of the Pochasset. It was in what is now the town of Cranston, on the "Scituate" road leading westerly from Knightsville to "Applehouse Hill," and about a mile and a half from the former place. There he died at the early age of 38 years, and he was no doubt buried in the family burying ground near the line separating his farm from that of his brother William, but no legible stone marks his grave. After his decease, 1719, the farm was sold to Nicholas Sheldon, Junr. His original will now before mc bearing date, 1715-16, February 21, recites that he is "very sick and weak in body yet in Perfect mind and memory, thanks be given "unto God, therefore calling unto mind the mortallyty of my body, and knowing " that it is appointed for all men once to dy, so make and order this my last will "and testament, that is to say Principally and first of all I give and Recommend "my soul into the hands of God that gave it, and my body I Recommend to the "Earth to be buried in Decent Christian burial at the decretion of my Executors, " nothing Douting but at the general Resurrection I shall Receive the same again by "the mighty Power of God."

Two of the witnesses to Samuel's will were his father-in-law, Major Thomas Fenner, who survived him just two years, dying 1718, February 27, and his brother Benjamin.

Samuel and Freelove's children were:

- I. Samuel<sup>4</sup>.
- II. Jabez<sup>4</sup>

  - I. Samuel Westcott<sup>4</sup>, the eldest son of the first Samuel, was born 1704, January 24, at his father's farm in that part of Providence now Cranston. His wife's Christian name was Mary, her surname is not known. She was born 1703, November 28, and died at Providence, 1785, August 20. He died 1759, July 18. His will dated 1758, June 22, states that he is then bound on an expedition against His Majesty's enemies. His inventory was  $\pounds 779$ . The expedition referred to was what is now called the "French War," when an attempt was made to reduce the French forts on Lake George and invade Canada. In this expedition a number of Rhode Island regiments took part. It is not known whether he lost his life in some one of the numerous engagements that occured on the northern frontier in the month of July 1759, or whether he died of disease. He was the owner of a considerable real estate in what is now the city of Providence and the surrounding territory. He owned "Wolf Hill," which he sold in 1726. He first settled on a small farm at Newtaconkanut Hill, from whence he removed to a larger one near "Cedar Swamp Brook," which is called by him six and a half miles west of salt water or Providence harbor. He then removed " into town," and owned and resided upon the lot at the north west corner of College and Benefit streets, opposite the new Court House, the latter standing on the site of the first erected Presbyterian church in Providence. He is called at different periods of his life "husbandman," "gale-keeper," (gaolkeeper) and "inn holder."

a. Jacob<sup>5</sup>, born in Providence, and died there just prior to 1808, April 4, when his will was probated. His first wife was probably a Miss Manchester of the Manchester family of Cranston. He married second, 1795, August 23, Elizabeth Dowler of Providence. From 1795, February 19, to his death he was a deacon in the First Baptist Church at Providence. He was a master mariner, sailing from Providence. In 1775, he was Lieutenant on board the "Row Galley, Washington," of thirty oars, sixty armed men, one eighteen pounder and smaller cannon, equipped for the defense of Narragansett Bay, and which was burned by the British in May 1778. From 1785 to 1796, he commanded respectively the ship Hope, briggs Le Orient, and Rambler, in the European trade, owned by Brown & Benson and other eminent merchants of that day. He owned a spacious lot on High Street, where he lived and died.

- b. James<sup>5</sup>, of Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, of Samuel<sup>3</sup>, was born at Providence, 1740 March 25, and died upon his farm at Chestnut Hill, East Killingly,, Conn., 1814, March 17, aged 74 years. He was twice married, first, about 1767, to Martha Fillinghast of Providence, who was the mother of all of his children but one, who died in infancy; second, to Orinda Reed of Rehobeth, of Thomas and Martha. She was born 1747, May 15. His first wife Martha Tillinghast, was the daughter of Captain William and Lydia (Harris) Tillinghast.* Captain William, born 1714, died 1753, was the son of Philip,** who died 1731-32, whose father was the Rev. Pardon born at "Seven Cliffs," near Beachy, * Lydia Harris, died 1770, September 24, in her 56th year. She was the daughter of Henry, born 1675, November 10. He was the son of Thomas Jun. and Elnatha (Tew) daughter of Richard Tew of Newport, from Maidford, England, 1640. The father of Thomas Jun., was Thomas who came from England 1630, in the ship Lyon with Roger Williams. Thomas Senr. held many offices of importance under the colonial government from 1648, until his death in 1686, and his descendants are numerous.

** Philip's wife was Martha Holmes, daughter of Jonathan, who was the son of Rev. Obadiah. Obadiah was born at Preston, Lancashire, England, in 1606, came to Salem about 1639. He was the first pastor of the first Baptist Church in Massachusetts, organized at Rehobeth as early as 1650. Before that time he was a pedo-baptist, but communed with the Orthodox Church there, under the pastorate of Rev. Samuel Newman. Upon leaving that church, and seeking to organize a new one, he was charged with and (indicted) for heresy. His offense was in continuing to hold meetings from house to house on the Lord's Day. Upon this charge he was tried at Boston as an "ex-communicate," and on the 31st day of the 5th month, 1651, convicted and sentenced to pay £30, or be whipt with thirty stripes. The offer of his friends to pay the fine he declined, as its acceptance would imply that he had been guilty of some offense, and that his condemnation was just. He was accordingly scourged with "thirty stripes" with a "three corded whip," laid on by a "strong man" with all of his strength. From this punishment he suffered many days and could take "no rest." Upon his recovery he departed from the civil and ecclesiastical jurisdiction of Massachusetts, and removed to Newport, R. I., where in 1652, he was chosen minister of the First Baptist Church. He remained in Newport until his death in 1682, at the age of 76 years. England, about 1622, came to Providence 1745, and was pastor of the First Baptist Church there, and erected at his own expense in 1700, the first meeting house on North Main Street. He died on South Main near Transit Street, Providence, 1717-18, January 29, and is buried near by in the Tillinghast burial ground on Benefit Street.

James, was known as Captain James, having been a master mariner. He commanded different vessels sailing from Providence in the West India and South American trade, among them from 1785 to 1790, were the Enterprises, Nancy, Betsy and Harmony. In 1785 he purchased the south half of a large double gambreld roofed brick house still standing on North Main Street, and now numbered 537-539, erected in 1760 by Deputy-Governor Elisha Brown, and there he resided until his removal to Killingly about 1809. In 1780 when the French army quartered for the winter in Providence, this house was occupied by the officers as headquarters. The reputation of Captain James, was that of a man of active business habits, upright life, and thoroughly conversant with the duties of his chosen profession. Having assisted his other sons in his life time, he devised his farm to his youngest son Parley, but no trace of his will can now be found, the probate record of Killingly having a few years ago been destroyed by fire. His second wife Orinda survived him and died at Killingly. His firstwife *Martha Tillinghast, was born at Providence 1747, September 9, and died there 1790, August 18, and is buried in the North Burial Ground. The head-stone at her grave is inscribed "Blessed are the Peacemakers, for they shall be called the Children of God." The memory of her that has come down through four generations, is that she was a woman crowned with almost every virtue that can adorn the sex, and although long, long years have passed by, and the cedar tree has planted itself upon her grave, even now the children of her children's children visit it, and look with reverential love upon the spot which holds her precious dust.

* Martha was born in the "Old Tillinghast House" still standing and now known as 299 South Main Street. It was erected by her grandfather Philip, about 1710. Both Philip, and his son John, were prominent merchants, and acquired wealth in trading at sea. The latter resided in Newport, and erected a large house fronting the "Old Mill," afterwards known as the Governor Gibb's house. He died in 1775, and left a legacy to Martha T. Westcott, his niece. Captain James Westcott's receipt for this legacy may be seen in the "Tillinghast Papers" in the Rhode Island Historical Society Library.

Lydia Tillinghast, a maiden sister of Martha, dying in 1797, bequeaths $100 each to William and James, and $50 each to Parley, Joseph, Martha and Mary, children of Captain James, and after certain other specific legacies, bequeathed all the rest of her property to these children.

vi. Jeremiah<sup>4</sup>, of Samuel.<sup>3</sup> An old genealogical chart of the earlier descendants of Samuel Westcott<sup>3</sup>, found among the *" Foster Papers," so called, in the library of the Rhode Island Historical Society, gives Jeremiah as the last child of Samuel, but no other record of him has been found, he is not named in his father's will of 1716, and may have died young.

*The "Foster Papers," consist of a number of manuscript volumes of valuable historical and genealogical information gathered by the late Hon. Theodore Foster, between the years 1775 and 1828. His original purpose was to write a history of the state, and he collected a large amount of material to that end. He was much interested in antiquarian and genealogical research. He graduated at Rhode Island College in 1770, and then studied law. From 1776 to 32, he represented Providence in the General Assembly. From 1812 to 16, he represented the town of Foster, named from him, in the same body. In 1785 he was chosen Judge in Admirality. From 1790 to 1803, he served as Senator in the Congress of the United States, having been three times elected to that office. His first wife was Lydia Fenner, of Arthur, of Major Thomos Fenner, whose daughter Freelove married the above Samuel Westcott<sup>3</sup>, father of the above Jeremiah.<sup>4</sup> Foster died at Providence 1828, January 13.

VII. WILLIAM<sup>3</sup>, SON OF THE FIRST JEREMIAH, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

VII. William<sup>3</sup>, was the fifth son of the first Jeremiah. He was born at "Old Warwick," and died in Cranston, R. I. Warwick," and died in Granston, n. 1. Warwick," and died in Granston, n. 1. The years of his birth and death are not accurately known. He was of age as early as 1709, was made a freeman in 1720, and was living in 1758. Upon attaining his majority he removed from Warwick into the adjoining town of Providence, now Cranston. His farm formed a part of what was known as the Meshantituck 1000 acres. That portion of these lands bore the Indian name "Consamasset" sometimes spelled "Conchamasset." It was located south of the road now leading from Knightsville to Scituate, and about one and one-half miles west of Knightsville. This road was not then opened, and when opened passed some distance to the northward of his house, leaving it then as indeed it is now, in a secluded spot, but one full of rural beauty. The cellar of this house and the remains of the old well are still to be seen. There too is the old family burial ground near by, where William lies with many of his descendants beside him. The head-stones save one are rough and uninscribed. That one bears only the monogram  $\frac{WXP}{1793}$  and is doubtless the grave of some member of the Potter family who lived near, and with whom the Westcotts intermarried. There also may be seen the stump of a "great cedar tree." This tree which has been lately cut down, is referred to as a noted land mark as early as 1732, in a deed from William to his son William, and again in 1805, in a deed from Major John Westcott, a great grandson of the first William to Robert Sheldon, when the farm passed out of the Westcott name. It is now owned by Mr. Marcellus J. Flanders. William married Abigail Gardner of Kingstown. She was living in 1732.

The only known children of William, are:

- I. William<sup>4</sup>, and
- II. Ezekiel.4

1. William<sup>4</sup>, was known as Captain William. That was probably a military title. He appears upon the records as a real estate owner as early as 1725. He died in 1781, his will having been probated January 29 of that year. He was made a "freeman," in 1730. In 1733 he was officiating as a constable. He lived and died upon the homestead farm of his father, a part of which his father gave him. The cellar of his house and vestiges of his well and orchard may still be seen. His wives' christian names appear as Katherine and Joanna, so he was probably twice married. Joanna died 1809, June 10.

VIII. BENJAMIN<sup>3</sup>, YOUNGEST CHILD OF THE FIRST JEREMIAH<sup>2</sup>, AND SOME OF HIS DESCENDANTS.

Beniamin ngfco7 1684, July 4, and died in that part of Providence which is now Cranston early in the year

1766, in the eighty first year of his age. He married Bethiah Gardner of Narragansett (South Kingstown). She was born in 1687, and died 1760, February 2, aged seventy-three years. In 1720, Benjamin was voted in as a freeman of the colony. In 1732, February 12, William Greene, surveyor, laid off for Benjamin fifty-eight acres of the then unallotted lands of Meshantituck, he holding "shares" or " rights " entitling him to this allottment. It is probable Benjamin occupied this land some time before it was surveyed and laid off to him, and built upon it, for when a few years since the chimney of the house he erected was taken down, two bricks were found bearing the figures "1700" plainly impressed in the plastic clay before it was baked. In January 1735, Benjamin<sup>3</sup> deeds to his son Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, twenty acres, being the northerly part of his home farm. In May 1748, he deeds to his son Josiah, nineteen acres, being the southerly part of his home farm, and to his son Samuel twenty acres, being the central portion, and upon which stood Benjamin's<sup>3</sup> house and other buildings. Of the very considerable landed property owned by the earlier generations of Westcotts in Warwick and Cranston, this portion of Benjamin's<sup>3</sup> farm is the only estate I have found continually owned and occupied by the same family line and name to this day, (1889), a period of nearly two centuries. It is in the southerly part of Cranston, near what in old times was called Sarle's (Searle's) corners. It is now known as Oak Lawn, that being the name of the adjacent station of the N. Y. and N. E. Railroad. In this age of youthful disquiet and cheap and rapid transit, how rare is it, and yet how pleasant, to see father and son through five successive generations, owning and tilling the same acres, gathering fruit from the same trees, content with the same lot, and when the end comes gathered side by side in the same family burial place.

Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, had eight children, viz. :

- I. Benjamin.<sup>4</sup>
- II. Stukeley.<sup>4</sup>
- III. Bethiah.<sup>4</sup>
- IV. Dorcas.4
- v. Hannah.<sup>4</sup>
- VI. Phebe.<sup>4</sup>
- VII. Josiah.<sup>4</sup>
- VIII. Samuel.<sup>4</sup>
  - 1. Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, of Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, was born about 1706. He was of age in 1727, made a freeman of the colony in 1734. He was a farmer and resided in the south part of Cranston on land his father sold him in 1735, and died and is buried there. He was living in 1781. In 1778 he became from some cause quite infirm and was twice put under guardianship; first his son Ephraim was appointed guardian, then in 1780, Richard Searle was appointed guardian, but in both cases the guardianship was soon revoked. In 1778, he sells his son Ephraim his farm, and in 1781 Ephraim sells it to Joseph Stone and Nathan Salisbury.

- a. James<sup>5</sup>, of Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, was born at Cranston 1749, May 1, died 1767, May 11, aged 18 years, and was buried in the family burial lot near Oak Lawn. A rough stone bearing only the initial letters, J. W. with the date of his birth and death mark his grave.
- b. Stephen<sup>5</sup>, of Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, was also born near Oak Lawn, Cranston. The date of his birth is not known. He was a mariner and traded with what he calls in one of his letters yet preserved, the "South Collonies" meaning the Carolinas. He was lost at sea in 1762, with Captain William Waterman. He married Phebe Williams, daughter of Joseph and Mary (Carpenter) Williams. Joseph was the son of Thomas Williams; Thomas was the son of the first Joseph and Lydia (Olney) Williams, and the first Joseph born 1643, December 12, was the youngest son of Roger Williams. Lydia Olney was the daughter of the Rev. Thomas, who preceeded Rev. Pardon Tillinghast as pastor of the First Baptist Church at Providence. Phebe survived her husband many years, dying at Cranston 1797, January. They had no issue.

- c. Sarah<sup>5</sup>, of Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, was born near Oak Lawn, Cranston, about 1753. She married 1773, May 2, Abraham Baker, of Warwick. Have not been able to trace the issue, if any, of this marriage.
- d. Ephraim<sup>5</sup>, of Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, was born at Oak Lawn, Cranston about 1735. He died in 1795. He married 1755, August 21, his second cousin Free-She was born in Cranston in 1733, and died after 1800. love Stone. She was the daughter of Eleanor (Westcott) Stone and William Stone. Eleanor was the daughter of Jeremiah<sup>3</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, of Stukeley.<sup>1</sup> See Eleanor<sup>4</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>3</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, page 61. Ephraim<sup>5</sup>, was an industrious and thrifty farmer, and probably the most prominent man in his town, during the Revolution. He was active and patriotic. When a young man he left Cranston and settled at what is known as Potters Hill or Pottersville, in the north part of Coventry. There he purchased a tract of land having upon it a small water power, and opened up in what was then a wild and unfrequented region, a large farm, and erected a small saw and grist mill. He paid more attention than was usual in those days to the cultivation of fruit, planting large orchards. There he died and near by is buried. Ephraim held various town offices, and was a member of the Colonial Assembly in 1776 when the colony passed an act renouncing all allegiance to the British crown. For a more full account of his public services, See Appendix G.

He had at least twelve children, viz.: Ephraim Jun.<sup>6</sup>, Polly<sup>6</sup> or Mary, Eleanor<sup>6</sup>, Amy<sup>6</sup>, Sarah<sup>6</sup>, Silas<sup>6</sup>, Freelove<sup>6</sup>, Jeremiah<sup>6</sup>, Stephen<sup>6</sup>, Samuel<sup>6</sup>, Lucy<sup>6</sup> and Phebe<sup>6</sup>.

As late as 1866, old apple trees of his planting might have been seen there. He married Freelove Stone, his third cousin. She was a daughter of Jeremiah, a son of Eleanor (Westcott) and William Stone. See Eleanor<sup>4</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>3</sup>, of Jeremiah<sup>2</sup>, of Stukeley<sup>1</sup>, page 61. She is named in 1789, in her father's will. She married Amos Jaqua. The tradition is that he was an officer in the French army under Count Rochambeau, at Yorktown in 1781, and that when the war closed, he remained in America, and settled in Connecticut.

i. Freelove<sup>7</sup>, last named, daughter of Freelove and Amos, married 1817, April 3, George Kenyon. They had issue:

- a. a. Rhoba<sup>8</sup>, born 1818, May 19, married Jeremiah Starkweather of Plainfield, Conn.
- b. b. Freelove<sup>8</sup>, born 1820, May 25, married Albert W. Baker, of Iowa City.
- c. c. Caroline<sup>8</sup>, born 1823, April 2, now living at Moosup, Conn., unmarried.
- d. d. William<sup>8</sup>, born 1825, April 6, killed by Indians in Kansas, 1870, May 9, never married.
- e. e. Nancy<sup>8</sup>, born 1827, November 29, married George B. Wheeler of New Bedford.
- f. f. Catharine<sup>8</sup>, born 1829, November 1, married Samuel J. P. Ladd, of Canterbury, Conn.

- Amey<sup>6</sup>, of Ephraim<sup>5</sup>, senior, was born at Coventry. She was living in 1789, and is then named in her father's will as Amey Wilbur.

- 10. Mary<sup>6</sup> or Polly, of Ephraim<sup>5</sup>, senior, was born at Coventry. She was living in 1789, and is then named in her father's will by her maiden name.
- 11. Stephen<sup>6</sup>, of Ephraim<sup>5</sup>, senior, born 1757, is named as a son (1789) in his father's will. He was also living as late as 1833, when he received a pension as a revolutionary soldier.
- 12. Phebe<sup>6</sup>, of Ephraim<sup>5</sup>, senior, is also named by her maiden name as one of his daughters, in his will of 1789.

II. Stukeley<sup>4</sup>, of Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, was his second child. He was of age in 1735. and was made a freeman in 1736. He is called a "joiner" by trade. He · is called in the marriage record "junior," although that affix to his name belonged properly to his consin Stukely<sup>4</sup>, of Stukely<sup>3</sup>, and after the former's death in 1736, to his son Stukely.<sup>5</sup> He married 1738, April 16, Sarah Gorton, of Warwick, of Samuel, of John, of the the first Samuel of Lancaster Co., England, 1592, of Warwick 1642. Sarah was born about 1710, and was living in 1766. In April 1759, Stukely, "joiner," buys of John Treadwell a farm in Johnston. of 39 acres, and in December 1759, sells the same. In 1766, he and wife Sarah sell to Jeremiah Burlingame the house where they live and a small triangular lot of 30 square rods near William Burtons in Cranston, and he buys of Nicholas Sheldon 50 acres with house, on the south side of the Plainfield road, adjoining lands of Joseph Fenner, Zuriel and Joseph Waterman and Thomas Hazard. In 1792 he gives his son Reuben a deed of one-half of this farm, and takes a life lease back. The time of Stukely's<sup>4</sup> death is not known. He and his wife are both buried upon this farm, but the stones marking their graves are without record.

Stukely<sup>4</sup>, had a son Reuben<sup>5</sup>, as before stated.

a. Reuben<sup>5</sup>, of Stukely<sup>4</sup>, was born in Johnston, in 1759, and died in Cranston 1840, March. He married 1781, January 1, Anne, daughter of Samuel<sup>5</sup> Westcott, of Jabez<sup>4</sup>, of the first Samuel<sup>3</sup> and Freelove. Reuben and Anne had no issue but they adopted a daughter who afterwards became the wife of Mr. B. Lawton. She is now dead. Reuben was a thrifty man, and known in Cranston and Johnston, as the rich Reuben. To the land he received from his father, he added by purchase from Zuriel Waterman, in 1801, 46 acres, and in 1808, from Esek Waterman 38 acres

- b. Stukely<sup>5</sup>, of Stukely.<sup>4</sup> The tradition is that Stukely<sup>4</sup>, had another son, bearing his own christian name. This is supposed to be the Stukely who 1765, December 6, married Sarah Briggs, widow of John, Jun. and who lived upon the small farm of 28 acres in Cranston, purchased in 1760 of Joseph Jenks, adjoining and bounded by the lands of Daniel, Peter, Thomas and Stephen Burlingame, and Thomas Searle. The Stukely, who 1778, May 24. married Rhobe Baker, of Elisha of Warwick, may be the same, Rhoby being his second wife, or the Stukely who married Rhoby, may have been the son of Benjamin<sup>4</sup>, Jun. who is said to have had a son of that name. But this, so far as the line of descent is concerned, is conjectural.*
- III. Bethiah<sup>4</sup>, was the third child of Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, of the first Jeremiah. She was born about 1705. She married 1725, April 15, her cousin Stukely<sup>4</sup>, of Stukely<sup>3</sup>, of the first Jeremiah. She lived and died at Providence, now Cranston. She survived her husband and was living in 1753. For her line see Stukely<sup>3</sup>, of Jeremiah.<sup>2</sup>
- IV. Dorcas<sup>4</sup>, was the fourth child of Benjamin.<sup>3</sup> She married James Congdon, of Benjamin of Portsmouth, afterwards of Kingstown, she was his second wife, she died before 1739. James was born at Kingstown 1686, April 19, and died 1757, September 27. He settled in Cranston, of which town he was a leading citizen for many years. By his wife Dorcas he had three children, as follows:
  - a. Ephraim<sup>5</sup>, of Dorcas.<sup>4</sup> He settled at Cranston, where he died 1794, April 13. He received under his father's will £50. He married Audera Sheldon, probably a descendant of the first John of Providence 1675, and earlier. He had five children viz.: Ephraim<sup>6</sup>, Nicholas<sup>6</sup>, James<sup>6</sup>, Hannah<sup>6</sup>, born 1755, April 1, who married — Fenner, and Penelope<sup>6</sup>, born after 1755, who married Benjamin Battey a descendant of the first * The number of children who were given the name of Stukely, in the century 1700 to 1800, ail born and living in the same town (Cranston,) and neighborhood, and of nearly the same age in their respective generations, together with the absence of any family records, and of any inscriptions upon the grave stones in their several family burial grounds has made it now almost impossible to place all of them in their proper line of succession. Harley Westcott of Cranston, a descendant of the first William, and who died there in 1888, at the age of 83 years, informed the writer that he when a boy knew of two Stukeley Westcotts, then living in middle life, but of their parentage he knew nothing.

Samson, of Jamestown, afterwards 1677, one of the original proprietors of East Greenwich.

- b. Dorcas<sup>5</sup>, of Dorcas<sup>4</sup>, was born 1729, December 14. She married about 1751, Gideon Hoxsie of Joseph. She had children, as follows: Gideon<sup>6</sup>, born 1752, July 11; Martha<sup>6</sup>, born 1754, September 6; Peleg<sup>6</sup>, born 1756, September 15; Lodowick<sup>6</sup>, Mary<sup>6</sup>, who married 1778, 1 mo. 1 day, John Knowles; Dorcas<sup>6</sup>, who married 1777, 11 month, 6 day, Zebulon Weaver and Elizabeth<sup>6</sup>, who married 1804, 10 month, 18 day, Joshua Rathbun.
- c. Joseph<sup>5</sup>, of Dorcas<sup>4</sup>, was born 1733, April 20, and died 1805, June 16. He married Susannah Cross, of Joseph. She was born 1734, February 6, and died 1801, January 17. He had children, as follows: Joseph<sup>6</sup>, born 1752, October 24; James<sup>6</sup>, Benjamin<sup>6</sup>, Phebe<sup>6</sup>, Ephraim<sup>6</sup>, Sarah<sup>6</sup>, born 1762, February 5; Jonathan<sup>6</sup>, born 1763, December 16; Joshua<sup>6</sup>, born 1765, July 13; Caleb<sup>6</sup>, Isaac<sup>6</sup> or Edward, born 1773, June 4; William<sup>6</sup>, born 1775, July 4, and Mary<sup>6</sup>, born 1777, September 20.
- v. Hannah<sup>4</sup>, was the fifth child of Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, of the first Jeremiah. All that has been learned of her is that in 1711, she is a witness to a deed from her brother.
- v1. Phebe<sup>4</sup>, was the sixth child of Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, of the first Jeremiah. She mar ried 1746, October 30, Daniel Sheldon of Cranston. He was probably of Daniel, of Timothy, of the first John, at Providence prior to 1675.
- VII. Josiah<sup>4</sup>, was the seventh child of Benjamin<sup>3</sup>, of the first Jeremiah. He was born at Oak Lawn (Cranston). He was a farmer and lived upon the southerly part of his father's home farm, which his father deeded to him in 1748. There in 1800 he died and was buried. He married 1746, March 19, Mary Collins, of James, a descendant of the first Elizur of Warwick 1644. He had children, as follows:
  - a. James<sup>5</sup>, who 1776, May 12, married Patience, daughter of Peter Stone, of Peter, of Peter, of the first Hugh of Warwick. James was a mariner. He was living as late as 1803. He had a son James and others not known.
  - b. Elisha<sup>5</sup>, of Josiah<sup>4</sup>, married 1776, June 25, Phebe Stone, a sister of the last named Patience. She was born in 1757. Elisha died in 1819.

Elisha<sup>5</sup> had children, as follows :

- 1.  $Elisha^6$ , born 1784, and who probably died before his father, as he is not named in his father Elisha's will.
- 2. Mary<sup>6</sup>, named in her father's will and who married Isaac Leach.
- 3. Sarah<sup>6</sup>, also named in her father's will, and who married first, Jonathan King; second, Holden King.
- 4. Charles<sup>6</sup>, born 1791, died before 1815, and before his father. He was a mariner. He married 1804, April 5, Betsy King, and left one child, John<sup>7</sup>, who in 1820, was between 14 and 21 years of age, when he selected his uncle Jonathan King, his guardian. This John had a son Charles A. of Providence.

She had issue :

- 1.  $Peter^6$ , born about 1785, and died in 1860.
- 2. Sophia<sup>6</sup>, born 1787, and married James Straight. She left no issue.
- 3. Sylvester<sup>6</sup>, born 1790, who removed West.
- d. Mary<sup>5</sup>, of Josiah<sup>4</sup>, married after 1801, Andrew Stone, of Peter. He officiated as an elder of the Baptist Church, but is said to have been wholly unworthy of his vocation. His wife stricken with neglect and abuse became insane, and died in 1840 at the Alm's House in Cranston. He died prior to 1866.
- e. Lydia<sup>5</sup>, of Josiah<sup>4</sup>, was living in 1805 unmarried, when she sold to her brother Elisha, her one eighth of her father's estate. The tradition is that with the money arising from this sale she purchased a horse, and started out to seek her own fortune. There is no later record of her.
- f. Bethiah<sup>5</sup>, of Josiah<sup>4</sup>, prior to 1802, married John P. Philips.
- g. Elizabeth<sup>5</sup>, of Josiah<sup>4</sup>, 1787, February 16, married William Fenner of Johnston.

grandfather's farm, except four square rods, where his wife and son are buried.

After 1754 when Cranston was taken from Providence he held various civil offices in the former town, being for a number of years a leading member of its Town Council. He was a farmer, and at his father's death succeeded to the ownership of the central portion of his father's farm, upon which the dwelling house and other buildings stood. There in the family burial ground near by the house he was buried. He was thrice married, first, to Anne Davis of East Greenwich, or North Kingstown, a descendant of the first Aaron of Newport. He was born, and passed his life and died upon the homestead farm in Cranston, first settled by his great grandfather the first Benjamin, and is there buried in the family burial ground. Niles was a man of intelligence and probity, and was a number of times chosen a member of the town council, and also a representative from Cranston to the General Assembly. This daughter and this son of Niles, now occupy the homestead farm, which for nearly two centuries has remained in the same Westcott name and blood, and to the former am I indebted for much of the information I have gathered of this line of the first Benjamin.

- g. Jonathan<sup>5</sup>, of Samuel<sup>4</sup>, was his youngest child. He was born at Oak Lawn, 1759, March 26, and died there 1824, March 7, aged 65 years. He was a farmer. Casey, daughter of Edward and Hannah. Edward was of Adam of the first Thomas of Newport before 1663.

Jonathan had issue as follows :

- Sylvester<sup>6</sup>, of Jonathan<sup>5</sup>, born 1783, August 14, died 1857, March 18. 13. PAULINA, of Oliver, married Patrick A. Brown, and is now living at Madison, Leona Co., Kansas.

PENELOPE, of Cranston, born 1718, died 1808, October 1, aged 90 years. She married Jeremiah Knight, Esq., of Cranston, and both are buried in the Knight family burial ground at Knightsville, in Cranston. Jeremiah was of Richard, of Jonathan of the first Richard of Newport, 1648. Jeremiah died 1800, June 23, aged 80 years and 6 months. Their children were :

1. MARTHA, of whom no more is known.

2. TABITHA, who married Robert Potter.

3. HANNAH, who married 1759, November 4, Charles Knight.

4. DINAH, who married Jeremiah Stone. Jeremiah was the son of Eleanor, (Westcott) and William Stone. Eleanor was a daughter of Jeremiah Westcott. For Dinah's line, see Jeremiah.<sup>3</sup>

5. NEHEMIAH, known as "Squire" Knight, was born 1746, March 30, and died 1808, June 13. He married 1762, August 8, Elinor, daughter of Daniel and Ellen (Rice) Hudson of Cranston. She was born 1746, December 5, and died 1823, April 5. "Squire" Knight was a man of marked ability and influence. For 20 years, from 1773 to 1793, he was the accurate and efficient town clerk of Cranston, acting all of this time also as the intelligent and friendly adviser of his fellow townsmen. From 1803 to 1808, he was the only representative of his state in Congress, dying in office June 13, of the latter year. The following record from his tombstone at Knightsville, bears testimony to the esteem in which he was held.

"This sad memorial is erected to the memory of Nehemiah Knight, Esq. For forty years he possessed, and during that long period never abused, the confidence of his country. With probity and honor he fulfilled the important trusts in the offices he sustained, both in his native state and in times of peculiar trial. Beloved in private life, and respected in public, he departed this life on the 13th day of June, 1808, aged 62 years, 2 months and two days."

The above Nehemiah, had a son Nehemiah R. Knight, born at Cranston, 1780, December 31, and died 1854, April 18. He married 1799, July 21, Lydia, daughter of Job Waterman, a descendant of the first Richard. Nehemiah R. attained even more of  $\epsilon$  minence in public affairs than his father. He was four times elected Governor of Rhode Island, holding the office from May 1817 to 1821, when he was chosen a Senator in the Congress of the United States, which office he retained by successive elections for a period of more than twenty years, from January 1821, to March 1841. The Hon. Jabez Comstock Knight, Ex-Mayor of Providence, is a descendant in this line.

Diligent search has thus far failed to reveal the names of Penelope's parents. That she was a daughter of one of the six sons of the first Jeremiah,<sup>2</sup> there can be no reasonable doubt. Her grave is upon land, once the home farm of one of them (Stukeley,<sup>3</sup>) and the farm of another (William<sup>3</sup>), was not far distant.

The following document, not only sheds additional light upon the controversy between Zorobabel Westcott as heir at law of Robert and Deborah, the widow of Amos Westcott, referred to on page 29, of Stukeley Life, etc.; but is deemed of sufficient historic interest for insertion here. It is a verbatim copy of an ancient manuscript recently found by the writer in the archives of the Rhode Island Historical Society. It is probably the only existing evidence relating to the session of the Colonial Assembly, to which Deborah's petition was addressed, and which was to have been holden at Warwick, Oct. 27th, 1697. No reference to, or record of such a session is to be found in the Rhode Island Colonial Records.

It shows why that petition was not then acted upon. No quorum of member's attended at the time stated, and so no legal legislative action could be taken. Coddington and Sheffield seeing this, return to their respective homes at Newport and Portsmouth. No relief being thus afforded Deborah, nine days afterwards, Deputy Gov. Greene and "Assistant" Smith, both residents of Warwick, and neighbors of Deborah and her son-in-law, Lockwood, who was then in possession of the premises for the recovery of which Zorobabel had obtained judgment in the courts, procuring the attendance of "Assistants" Jencks and Arnold, from the adjoining town of Providence; these three with the Deputy Governor, meeting at the house of Peter Greene, proceeded to assume to be the Colonial Assembly, although only three out of ten of but one branch of the Assembly were present, and in the Kings name, ordered the Sheriff and Deputy Sheriff to abstain from serving the execution for possession, then in their hands, until "there bee a legal determination of "Deborah's apeale."

It is well known that the General Assembly of Rhode Island both under the Colonial and State Governments, and as late as the year 1842, exercised judicial powers; but this is the only instance known to the writer, in which a small minority of one branch of that body, without any proper call, and without notice to the adverse party, plainly usurped such power, and attempted to exercise it in opposition to the authority of the civil courts.

"Wheras wee John Greene deputy governor Joseph Juincks asistant Stephen Arnold asistant & Benjamin asistant being met this 5th of November 1697, at the house of Capt. It is a well known historical fact, that after the British Government, in 1755, expelled the Acadians from their settlements in Nova Scotia, for suspected disloyalty; the authorities of that Province under the lead of its then Governor (Lawrence) took active measures to repeople the district from which the Acadians had been driven, with settlers whose fealty to the British crown could not be doubted. Official proclamations were issued and circulated in the New England Colonies, offering settlers free grants of land. This led to quite a large emigration from Rhode Island. Two vessels left Newport in that State in the Spring of 1760, laden with emigrants and their effects. They landed upon the banks of the river Pisiquid, now called the Avon, and settled the towns of Falmouth and Newport, and the contiguous country. Among them were a number of the descendants of the first Stukeley Westcott. A Jeremiah, Robert, his son Robert Jun., Zerobabel and a Stukeley, were of this number. See Robert's<sup>2</sup> line, pages 3, 4, 5. As early as July 1761, they are found as grantees of land at Newport. Jeremiah is found at Fort Ellis, at the junction of the Stewiacke and Shubenacadie rivers on the 18th of October, 1761, in active service as a land surveyor. In 1769, July 10, Robert Jun., writes from Newport to his brother-in-law Joseph Straight of East Greenwich, R. I., in the care of Captain John Low, of Warwick, in relation to lands he, Robert, had procured for Straight there. Zerobabel is found July 9, 1760, acting as clerk at a meeting of the "Proprietors" at Newport. In 1761 Stukeley is acting as the agent or attorney of Christopher Allen of North Kingstown to "draw lots" of land for Allen in his absence. On a list of persons at Newport, N. S., qualified to serve as jurors, of date September 3, 1781, the name of Westcott does not appear. Some further inquiries have failed to elicit information, whether these persons permanently settled in Nova Scotia, or returned to Rhode Island.

An interesting article on "The Early Emigration of Rhode Islanders to Nova Scotia," by Ray Greene Huling, Esq., may be found in the April No. 1889, of the Narragansett Historical Register.

On page 58, of this work, it is stated that Col. Joab Stafford removed from Berkshire Co., Mass., to Albany. This is erroneous. He died at an advanced age, after a life of many vicissitudes at Cheshire, and is buried there. His sons removed to New York State.

F.

Deborah (Stafford) Westcott, the second wife of Amos<sup>2</sup>, must have been born earlier than 1650-1, as her brother Joseph, was the youngest of the children of the first Thomas Stafford, and Joseph was born in 1648. See page 37.

Ephraim senior, See p. 142, was an active supporter of the cause of the Colonies, in their struggle for independence. When General Nathaniel Greene left Coventry for the seat of war, Ephraim was chosen by his fellow townsmen to succeed him as First Deputy from that town to the General Assembly. By successive re-elections he continued to represent Coventry in the eventful years of 1776, 1777, 1778 and 1780. In January 1776, he is one of a committee to act during the recess of the Assembly, to buy supplies of beef, etc., probably for the use of the troops. In March 1776, he is one of a committee to procure 2,000 stand of arms, with accoutrements, for the troops. In May 1776, he is one of a committee to advance the soldiers bounty, advancing for Coventry £1,232, and also to procure blankets for the troops " now under inoculation in Kent County." Wherever named in the Legislative records, Ephraim senior, bears the title of "Esquire," in those days a title affixed only to the names of prominent and influential men.
